Hull Considering Hardest Critic for Pan-American Post

WASHINGTON—Not many people really got to know Cordell Hull during his long term in the House and Senate, but those who did sized him up as a silent, broad-gauged, open-minded Jeffersonian Democrat with a strong yen for championing the under dog.

As Secretary of State these qualities are slowly coming to the surface. Hull's latest move is to select tentatively Ernest Gruening, his most hard-hitting critic on Cuba, as a member of the American delegation to the Pen-American Conference in Montevideo.

Gruening, editor of the liberal weekly, The Nation, last week called Hull's Cuban policy "muddling with a vengeance." He said that Ambassador Welles "committed a curious and needless slip" in denying recognition to the Grau San Martin government. He indicated that Welles was "piqued" because the De Cespedes government, which he helped to create, had failed.

Gruening, if his appointment goes through, will act as co-delegate with Welles in Montevideo.

Hull figures that clash of opinion is a good thing, "jogs career diplomats out of their ruts."

Packers' Code

The fight over the Meat Packers' code has developed a wide though carefully guarded rift in the Department of Agriculture.

On one side are the Department's liberals. They describe the proposed Packers' Code as one of the rawest deals private enterprise has tried to put over on the farmer. This side includes Secretary Wallace, himself.

On the other side are conservatives led by George Peek, a former associate of Barney Baruch, former executive of the Moline Plow Company. Peek understands the packers' point of view and is thoroughly honest in his convictions.

The friction has come to such a climax that during recent hearings on the Packers' Code, extraordinary steps were taken to see that no inkling of the rift leaked out to the public.

Ordinarily, different members of the Agricultural Department ask questions orally at these hearings. But it was realized that the asking of these questions would indicate the bitterness of some members.

So orders came down from Peek that all questions were to be asked in writing. Little slips of paper were to be handed up to the Chairman, who was to read off the question without the name of the inquisitor being known.

Then Peek, himself, came down to watch the proceedings. Harmony was preserved.

Secret Ace

"Honest Harold" Ickes has a secret Public Works ace he is holding to trump Congress.

No man in the New Deal Cabinet has been more popular with the general public than Honest Harold, and no man more unpopular with members of Congress. The reason is easy to understand.

One year ago Congress passed a public works bill providing for the construction of 942 post offices, immigration stations and customs building throughout the United States. The bill was passed almost over the dead body of Herbert Hoover. He protested to the very end, virtually held his nose and cried "PORK!" as he signed it.

Nevertheless the bill became law.

Seven months passed. Nothing happened. It takes time to approve leases and let contracts under any administration. Finally Congress, acting at the behest of Roosevelt, threw the entire 942 buildings into the giant $3,300,000,000 public works bill.

Under Roosevelt, Congress expected prompt action. Imagine its irritation, therefore, to find that F. D. R. and Ickes felt very much the same way about post offices as did Hoover.

They are opposed to PORK.

So against Honest Harold there has been a terrific under cover war by members of Congress.

10 DESPERATE CRIMINALS TAKE SHERIFF, FLEE PRISON; EASTERN RIOT ENDED TODAY

Several Indiana Prisoners Believed Trapped Near Chesterton

FEAR FOR OFFICER

Part of Men Fleeing in Stolen Auto

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind. Sept. 27.—An army of more than 500 officers and vigilantes today were scouring northern Indian for ten desperate armed convicts who escaped from the state penitentiary here, taking as hostage Sheriff Charles Neel of Harrison-co. A prison clerk was shot and probably fatally wounded in the break for liberty.

Officers directing the manhunt expressed fears for the sefety of Sheriff Neel after residents northwest of Valpariso sighted the four convicts who had seized Neel, as the felons fled into a woods near Liberty Center witnesses noted that the sheriff was no longer in the group.

One hundred possemen surrounded the wooded tract, but early today reported that no trace o fthe fugitives could be found.

OTHERS IN AUTO

Five other convicts were being hunted on highways leading into Lafayette, Ind., whence they fled in a stolen automobile. Posses were hunting the tenth convict near here.

Clerk Finley Carson, 72 year old, was shot and critically wounded when the ten long term prisoners fought their way to freedom late yesterday with smuggled guns. Several guards and officials were slugged in the break.

All of the fugitives were long term robbers and murderers. Capt. Matt Leach of the Indiana state police described the men as "the ten worst men in the prison."

Police of 40 towns were cooperating in the manhunt, searching highways, side roads and farm tracts throughout the night in a driving rain.

CAPTURED SHERIFF

Gaining their liberty, the felons seized Sheriff Neel, who had just delievered a consignment of prisoners, commandeered his automobile and two other cars and split into two main groups. The sheriff's car was wrecked near Wheeler, Ind., and the convicts seized another car from Cecil Spanier and continued their flight.

Luring J. H. Stevens, superintendent of the shirt factory into the basement. On a trumped up complaint, the prisoners prodded a gun into his back and ordered him to lead the way across the prison yard and into the front guard room. Deputy Warden Albert Evans was made a prisoner in the same manner, and the convicts made their escape.

WARDEN IS BEATEN

Check-Up Shows No Prisoners Escaped

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 27.—Crowded conditions that forced him to place as many as four prisoners in a cell and a shortage of guards were blamed today by Warden Herbert J. Smith for the general riot staged by convicts at the 103-year-old Eastern penitentary last night.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 27.—Battering inmates with high pressure fire hoses while nearly 300 city and state police armed with sub-machine guns, rifles and tear gas grenades prepared to storm the prison, authorities early today broke up a general riot staged by virtually the entire population of the Eastern state penitentiary.

Enraged at revocation of special privilages following disclosure of an attempted jail break last week, the prisoners started the bedlam, worst staged at the prison in its 103 years, shortly after messtime.

Convicts seized mattresses, set them afire and thrust them into the corridors radiating from the central lookout post.

WARDEN BEATEN

A group seized Herbert J. Smith, warden of the prison, and beat him severely with a piece of steel bar wrenched from a cot before the guards rescued him.

Wardens and guards, locked from the cell tiers by the barricade of flaming matresses, strove futilely to subdue the bedlam of shouting, cursing and hammering on cell bars and windows. Several of the felons had to be removed from their cells to save them.

As police raced to the prison and flung a guard around it to prevent any convicts going over

OHIO CITIES PLAN PLANTS

Three Would Build To Oppose Utilities, Others Ask Additional Cash.

COLUMBUS, Sept. 27.—A bold move to break the grip of the privately-owned utility companies in Ohio has been started by a group of cities which are using the great Tennessee Valley project as their guide-post, the state public works advisory board revealed today.

A growing movement is being pushed by these cities toward the construction of municipally-owned plants with the aid of federal public works funds. The plants would compete against private companies.

Three cities—Kenton, Defiance and Hiram—have made appeals for money to construct complete new municipal electric plants to compete against private firms, while three others—Columbus, Shelby and Montpelier—have requested funds to make additions to their present properties.

The most recent request, an-

Danger of Pestilence Strikes Oil City

Copyright 1933 by International News Service

TAMPICO, Mexico, Sept. 27.—The rich oil port of Tampico, ravaged by a hurricane and floods, was menaced again today by a new rise in the waters of the Panuco and Tamesi rivers.

General Anselmo Macias, military commanndant here who has has been heading relief work, sent a wireless message to President Abelardo Rodriguez in Mexico City advising him the new threat to the safety of survivers.

The water rose again in the inundated streets of the city as rescue workers strove to care for the hundreds injured in the disaster and probed in sodden ruins for the bodies of additional dead.

Definitely established dead in Tampico and Cardenas stood at 78, this being the number of bodies recovered. Rescue workers expressed fears that many remained buried in the ruins in inundated areas where exploration has not yet been possible.

FINLEY FACES MINOR CHARGE

Jury Finds Him Guilty of Assault and Battery In Redman Case.

Paul Finley, 23, alias Paul Queen of near Adelphi, will be sentenced next Monday by Judge J. W. Adkins after being found guilty of assault and battery by a jury Tuesday afternoon. Finley was indicted by a recent grand jury for cutting with intent to wound Floyd 'Tafe' Redman, local colored youth.

After a deliberation of two hours the jurors announced they had found Finley guilty of a lesser crime.

The maximum penalty Finley now faces is six months in the county jail or $200 fine and costs or both. Up to that amount is determined by the court. A fine of $1 and a day in jail is possible if the court should so decide.

Finley was arrested by the sheriff's department a day after he cut Redman at Corwin and Washington-sts. He was riding in the automobile of Burl Hill, colored, bound toward Adelphi when he was arrested.

The defense conducted by Attorney Frank Redfern claimed that Finley cut Redman while defending himself. Two witnesses presented by the defense maintained Redman had a knob in his hand while fighting Finley who was alleged to be intoxicated. After Finley slashed Redman's abdomen with the knife Harley Redman, father of the colored youth, struck Finley in the jaw knocking him out.

Prosecutor Ray W. Davis represented the state.

Finley's counsel has three days in which to file action for a new trial but he is expected to abide by the jury's finding.

George Bochard, Deercreek-twp, was foreman of the jury.

Donahey to Aid Repeal Effort

Former Governor To Make Series of Talks Prior To November Election; Refuses To Discuss Senatorial Aspirations.

COLUMBUS, Sept. 27.—Former Governor Vic Donahey, potential Democratic candidate for U. S. Senator, will campaign for repeal of the 18th amendment in a series of speeches he will deliver prior to the Nov. 7 election, he told International News Service today.

Donahey, three-times governor and former state auditor, declared he is for repeal because he is convinced "we can't get anywhere under the present liquor control system" and that he will make speeches urging Ohio to vote for repeal "because I have always believed it my duty to tell the public where I stand."

He will also come out openly, he said, in favor of the proposed constitutional amendment to cut the real estate tax limitation from 15 to 10 mills.

SILENT ON OTHERS

No indication was given as to what will be his stand on two other proposed amendments—one to provide for country home rule government, and the other to establish a system of old age pension by law.

Political significance should not be attached to his speeches, the formed governor asserted.

"Several hundreds of letters have come to me," he explained, "asking my position on these proposed amendments. Through a few speeches, I will give my answer."

Donahey reiterated that definite announcement as to whether he will be a candidate for U. S. senator will not be made until January. He refused to discuss the possible candidacy of Governor White.

He has no intention, he declared, of emphasizing his stand on prohibition repeal above the other proposed amendments, although he admitted that the importance of the liquor question may focus more attention on his attitude on that issue.

NOAH HILL DIES OF SHOTGUN INJURIES

PASTOR IN WRECK

Rev. Beall, who served at Williamsport the past year, was removing to take over his new charge in Jackson.

Wound Suffered Accidentally Last Sunday Morning Is Fatal.

WAS CITY NATIVE

Leaves Two Brothers; Rites To Be Thursday.

Noah Hill, 46, colored, died at Berger hospital at 5:20 p. m. Tuesday of complications following a gun shot wound.

He was taken to Berger hospital early Sunday by officers who were called to his house after Mr. Hill was alleged to have shot himself in the leg with a shotgun. The shooting was termed accidental by officials who investigated.

When taken to the hospital the man was suffering from loss of blood. His leg was badly lacerated and the bone fractured.

He insisted that his leg not be amputated if there was any possible chance to save it. A bacilli common after gun shot wounds in the war developed in his leg and, after he developed a high fever, he passed away.

Mr. Hill was a native and lifelong resident of Circleville being born here in 1887.

Two half brothers, Esdras and Thomas Hill, both of this city, survive.

Funeral services will be Thursday at 3 p. m. at the Albaugh chapel with Rev. R. D. Grant officiating. Interment will be in Forest cemetery.

THIEVES ENTER MORRIS' HOME

Pocketbook Containing Money Stolen While N. Court-St Family Is Asleep.

Police, Wednesday, were seeking clues in a daring robbery during the night at the home of J. Monroe Morris, 706 N. Court-st, when a pocketbook was taken from the trousers pocket of Mr. Morris' son, Ralph.

The amount of money stolen was not definitely set but it was believed to be near $40.

A screen was removed from a downstairs window by the thieves who crept up the stairs, past Ralph's bed and to a clothes closet where the pocketbook was stolen. The empty pocketbook was found in the downstairs when the family arose this morning.

The only clues police have are a screw driver, used apparently to remove the screen which was placed beside the house when taken from its place, and two coat-hangers found outside the house this morning.

New Holland's Three Rural Routes To Be Consolidated on November 1

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Pay raises for two rural mail carriers at the postoffice at New Holland, Pickaway County, and a transfer for the third, will result from the postoffice department's economy program, it was announced at the department today.

The three routes now operated from New Holland are to be consolidated into two, effective November 1. The government will save money in spite of the pay raises, because pay for rural routes is on a sliding scale, and is less per mile as the mileage of individual route increases.

Wayne Wood, carrier on route 3, will be transferred to Frankfort, Ohio, and his route split up between the present routes 1 and 2.

Earl C. McQuay, carrier on route 1, will have his distance increased from 31.9 miles to 39.46 miles, and will get a pay boost from $2040 to $2250.

Don F. Asher on route 2, will take on additional milage to bring his route up from 27.2 miles to 42.31 miles, and will get a pay raise from $1890 to $2340.

Improved methods of transportation are what make such consolidations possible, officials of the department explained. Most of the existing rural routes are laid out in the horse and buggy days, they pointed out.

MERRELL TO SEEK PUBLIC WORKS CASH FOR PROJECT

N. & W. Tracks to River Bridge Included in Project; S. Court-st Job Considered Too Large for City This Size Under U. S. Plan; Delegation Brings Action

COLUMBUS, Sept. 27. — Approval of a $17,000 public works project for Circleville, involving the improvement of 1500 feet of U. S. route 22 west on the west edge of the city, was announced today by the state highway department.

The present 16-foot street, which is of old waterbound macadam, will be paved 24 feet wide, giving employment to from 50 to 75 men for at least two months, under plans which Highway Director O. W. Merrell will submit to federal officials, with a request for their approval. The announcement followed a conference with Circleville officials.

Members of the delegation which attended the hearing in the highway department's office included Mayor B. T. Hedges, Service Director A. J. Lyle, Commissioners John Hay, Burr Rader and Ralph May, County Engineer J. Howard Sweetman, Deputy Engineer Ralph Wood, City Engineer Harry Griner, Councilmen T. M. Barnes, F. A. Marion, C. O. Leist and Clark Will, and Frank Marion Jr.

Officials of the department also announced that the state will pave 1900 feet of state route 56, also inside the city, "as soon as funds are available." This is estimated to cost from $12,000 to $15,000.

DECISION WITHHELD

A proposal to pave approximately one and one-eighth miles of Court-st in Circleville, making needed repairs, was also discussed at the conference with Circleville officials, but the highway department withheld decision.

Bids will be asked almost immediately and work will be started within a few weeks on the federal project if Washington officials give their consent.

All the expense would be paid from the federal public works fund, as distributed by the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads. Much of the construction could be done yet this fall, although the completion probably would have to be delayed until spring, according to H. P. Chapman, assistant director.

LYLE IS LEADER

A. J. Lyle, service director of Circleville, led a delegation which laid the plans before Chapman here yesterday.

Clyde Moyer, the department's planning engineer, was instructed to complete plans as quickly as possible for submitting to Washington.

The State Route 56 project is not eligible for federal public works fund, Chapman ruled, because the street is not a part or an extension of the federal system, as is required.

Although work on that street, now of gravel, was promised "as soon as funds are available," this does not mean that the work will be attempted this year or even next year, Chapman declared. He said the speed with which the state route proposal will be handled will depend entirely upon the funds.

Doubt was expressed privately among highway department officials as to the likelihood of the Court-st proposal being approved.

Although a part of the federal system, this project, it was said, is too large for a city of the size of Circleville, judged from the type of projects which the U. S. Bureau of Roads has been approving recently.

FIFTY POLICE GUARD KELLY

'Gunner' Makes Threats He Will Be Out Soon; Bond Is $200,000.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 27.—Shelby-co jail was an armed fortress today as an army of police guarded George "Machine Gun" Kelly, notorious desperado who with his wife, Kathryn, is being held for extradition to Oklahoma City for trial in the Charles F. Urschel kidnaping.

Fifty police and federal operatives will guard the gangster continuously until the journey to Oklahoma City begins. Three machine guns are trained on Kelly's cell to prevent him from making good the sneering boast, "I'll be out of this in no time."

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 27.—Capture of George "Machine Gun" Kelly forestalled a campaign of murders the desperado was planning, authorities learned today from his wife Kathryn, who is charged jointly with Kelly in the Charles F. Urschel kidnaping.

Secretly arraigned in their cells last night Kelly and his Titian-wigged young wife pleaded not guilty and were held in default of $100,000 bonds by Commissioner Lester Brennan on warrants charging them with abduction of Urschel, millionaire oil man whose family paid $200,000 for his release.

Kelly indicated they would fight extradition to Oklahoma.

Gaines Hill, backfield mainstay, has an 'ouchy' shoulder and has not been able to put forth his best efforts in practice this week. Should he be forced to the sidelines both offense and defense would be sorely handicapped.

Billy Steele, who played a nice game at end against Lancaster, has not been in school all week and George Speakman, halfback, has a bruised neck and is suffering with a heavy cold. Willis Camp, tackle, has a bruised right leg and, although in school, has not been able to practice football.

Jimmy Lyle and Walter Osborne, substitutes, are also unable to workout.

Coach Pete Herberholz has been working on several combinations fearing that several of the injured will not be available for Friday's tilt. He faces a mighty difficult task.

Holy Rosary is expected to provide plenty of opposition to the Tigers. The team defeated Mt. Sterling last Friday by a 25-0 score and when it is considered that Bexley defeated Mt. Sterling by a 26-0 score then went on to hold Columbus North Hi to a scoreless draw, Rosary must be tough.

COLLEGE BOY IS SUPERIOR TO DAD

Proven to Be a Better Man Physically.

Chicago.—It may be a different story when the psychologists get around to checking up—but physically, the collegian of today is a better man than his dad. Statistics prove that it's so, in the exhibit operated under the auspices of the anthropology department of Harvard university in the Hall of Science at A Century of Progress. They're hot on the trail of such distinctions there, in the booth that is a focal point for constantly growing, interested crowds.

C. W. Dupertius, research student at Harvard, and his staff spend their days setting down painstakingly detailed measurements and complexion data on the subjects who offer themselves for the purpose. Practically everybody has an avid curiosity to learn all he can about his ancestry and racial strains, it seems, and to date, 1,900 of these extensive reports have been compiled for future analysis and report. The demand is so great now for such consultations that it has necessitated the making of appointments a day ahead.

Study of approximately thirty individuals per day has convinced the staff of the accuracy of its findings with respect to the present generation of boy and girl college students. Thus when the measurements taken a generation ago are compared with those accruing from these World's fair studies the youngsters win, hands down.

They're taller, broader of shoulder, thicker through the torso, slimmer of hip and longer of leg than their immediate ancestors, the charts reveal. The situation is the same in both feminine and masculine charts, except that thirty years ago or so they didn't, it appears, have the nerve to measure mother's knees—so that item of comparison with her athletic daughter's goes unsolved.

"What we are most interested in discovering," explains Mr. Dupertuis, "is whether any definite, composite racial type of American is being evolved by the conditions of life in this country today—whether one outstanding type has emerged from the melting pot, as it were. But we think that there will be a number of illuminating things revealed as a result of this study."

Dresses for the young school child should hang from the shoulder, say clothing specialists.

COLUMBUS, Sept. 27.--Weather permitting, play in the Junior World Series between the Columbus Red Birds and the Buffalo Bisons, now deadlocked at one game each, will be resumed here tonight.

The third game, scheduled for last night, was called on account of rain, and rescheduled for tonight. The game originally planned for tonight was moved over until tomorrow night, after which the series will move to Buffalo.

Clarence Heise, leading pitcher of the American Association, was slated to get the call for the Birds tonight, and Manager Ray Schalk of the Bisons will nominate Phil Gallivan, his ace right-hander who performed well in a relief role here in the opener Sunday.

Fifteen hundred spectators were in the stadium last night when President Thomas J. Hickey of the American Association announced the game's postponement.

News of the delay was received cheerfully by the players themselves, for it meant an extra day's pay to them. The Bisons International League champs, spilled first blood in the series by winning the opener 7 to 6, while the Birds retaliated by taking the second Monday to the tune of 8-4.

Our Post Service Dates From February 17, 1691

The beginning of the American post proper dates from the signing of a patent vesting Thomas Neale with postal jurisdiction, February 17, 1691. On April 4, the same year, Neale and the royal postmaster general appointed Andrew Hamilton postmaster general of America. He was required to establish an intercolonial post. He visited all the colonies and secured from all except Virginia pledges of co-operation. The service began May 1, 1693, and consisted of weekly posts from Portsmouth, N. H., to Boston, Saybrook, New York, Philadelphia, Maryland and Virginia, five riders to cover each of the five stages twice each week. Hamilton died in 1703 and was succeeded by his son, John Hamilton. From 1707 to the outbreak of the Revolution the general post office in London controlled the system in America. Mail moved weekly between Boston and Maine in 1711 and between New York and Williamsburg, Va., in 1717. There was a fortnightly service between Philadelphia and Annapolis in 1727.

A new chapter was opened with the appointment of Benjamin Franklin as deputy postmaster in America, 1737. Sixteen years later he was named postmaster general with Col. William Hunter. The printer-philosopher made a tour of all the post offices in his jurisdiction, omitting only Charleston. Difficulties with Governor Hutchinson of Massachusetts in 1774 resulted in his dismissal. But the system which he had developed survived him, and when the Continental post office department was created, with headquarters at Philadelphia, he was elected postmaster general and resumed charge, July 26, 1775.

The Continental congress authorized the establishment of a line of posts between New Hampshire and Georgia "and to such other places as congress might direct." Rates of postage, fixed by law, were: Single letters, under 60 miles, 7.4; 60 to 100 miles, 11.1 cents; 100 to 200 miles, 14.8 cents; and 3.4 cents additional for each 100 miles.

Vuchinich Hurt Four Others Out

By International News Service.

The hospital list of Ohio State's football team was raised to five today with Michael Vuchinich, fullback who is being groomed for the center position, laid up for at least several days with an injured groin.

Other Buckeyes on the shelf are Keefe, Heekin, Yards and Monahan. Regular sessions were scheduled for the gridders today, after a day's layoff for the varsity due to the heat. The reserves, however, were given no rest yesterday.

At Capital, hopes faded for a victory over Toledo in their opener Friday as a team of rookies managed to hold the varsity back, forcing the regulars to kick three times during the scrimmage session.

LOCKERT IS GONE

Coach George Gauthier at Ohio Wesleyan announced the loss, due to academic difficulties, of Don Lockert, Akron sophomore back. Coach Peden at Athens, putting his charges through vigorous drills for the Morris Harvey game Saturday, lined up an all-sophomore combination.

The Heidelberg college squad lost a veteran with the withdrawal from school of Robert Young, a junior. Cincinnati University's Coach King continued his efforts to find a capable passer, as his team prepared for the opener against Rio Grande Saturday night.

Findlay College's coaching staff today continued to debate over line choices for the Denison game Friday. Nelson Jones of Fremont and Wilmer Deckard of Middletown, Pa., waged a keen fight for the center berth.

At Oxford, Coach Frank Wilton replaced his regular guards, Rentz and Carmean, with Bob Kaiser and Ned Brooks. Miami officials received word that Indiana U. heads, who had been dissatisfied at being scouted Saturday, were convinced that Miami acted innocently.

Otterbein's squad was scheduled to hold one more night practice to get in shape for the John Carroll game in Cleveland Friday night. Coach Langeman put his Muskingum squad through another stiff drill, in preparation for Saturday's game with Kent State.

Rare Mice Discovered by California Expert

Sequoia National Park, Calif.—A rare species of mice, equipped with pockets in which they carry food, was discovered here by Prof. Joseph Dixon, University of California mammalogist.

Professor Dixon found the little animals on Yucca Point at an altitude considerably above that normally sought by mice.

He described them as part of one of the most interesting "triangles" in nature. Seeds of the yucca plant are scattered by white Yucca moths, picked up by the pocket mice and carried to their burrows, where forgotten, they take root and grow.

Crows Travel Through States With Salesman

Columbia, Mo.—Mack and Jimmy, two crows, are migratory birds. But not in the same sense that other birds are.

Mack and Jimmy are owned by W. E. Hubble of Galveston, Texas, a traveling salesman who recently visited Columbia. Mack and Jimmy are his pets and they eat everything but thirteen-year-old cicadas and sweet potatoes. Mack, two years old, cracks Jimmy's peanuts because Jimmy is only two months old.

The two birds have been in twelve states in twelve weeks and have traveled from the Gulf to the Great Lakes three times.

More than 4000 sets of answers to correspondence courses were received by the Ohio Agricultural Extension Service in the year ending in July. Eighty-four per cent of the students finished the lessons sent them.

Mrs. Coolidge Also Known for Silence

Washington.—While Mrs. Calvin Coolidge was noted as one of the most brilliant conversationalists who ever graced the position of First Lady of the Land, she was also as silent as President Coolidge from a public point of view.

During the years she was in the White House and as wife of the Vice President of the United States, Mrs. Coolidge never made a public speech or allowed herself to be interviewed on a public question.

Her theory was that the first commandment of a politican's wife should be: "Thou Shalt Not Talk Politics." Mrs. Coolidge did, ocasionally, see writers for newspapers or magazines and was most gracious in helping them with their stories, but never as coming from her.

Below, Virginia de Palma and James Medley who fell into police trap when they attempted to collect dummy package of money. Mrs. Dougherty is a niece of Russell C. Question as to whether he favors a sales tax or a utilities tax as a replacement levy for the real estate tax, he replied:

"I'll have a tax plan to suggest when the time comes."

Numerous visitors at Donohey's office here have sought to sound him out on his opinion of the recent actions of the legislature in its wrestle with the school problem. However, "the governor"—as he is still known to his associates—has not replied openly lest his answer be interpreted as a political pronouncement.

VAC-A-WAY
Seed and Grain Cleaner
Saturday, Sept. 30th

Come in Saturday and see how the Vac-A-Way cleans and grades any seed grown on your farm. The Vac-A-Way Seed and Grain Cleaner is more than a fanning-mill. It does more than just take out the dirt and chaff. It enables the farmer to do the work of cleaning and separating his seed . . . and do it RIGHT.

INCREASE YOUR YIELD AND PROFITS WITH VAC-A-WAY

With the aid of a Vac-A-Way you can "Breed-up" your crops in the way that is constantly being advocated by the agricultural colleges. You can feed corn through your planter of uniform size and thereby eliminate unplanted hills due to the wedging of seed in the drill. The extra yield obtainable from clean seed will quickly pay the small cost of VAC-A-WAY and leave you larger profits from then on, because with proper care the VAC-A-WAY Seed and Grain Cleaner will last a lifetime.

Bring In a Sack of Seed or Grain Saturday

We will be glad to clean it for you and show you how the VAC-A-WAY operates. Demonstration starts 10 A. M.

Federals Turn Activities To Kansas City Massacre

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27. — Dramatically concluding the round up of the Urschel kidnappers with the arrest of George "Machine Gun" Kelly and his wife, Rose Shannon Kelly, the justice department today turned its major attention to the Kansas City massacre of last June when five were slain.

Three of the suspected Kansas City slayers are still at large.

One of them is Verne C. Miller, a bandit with a long criminal record, regarded by J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the division of investigation, as the most demoniacal criminal at large today.

"I regard Miller as a more dangerous man than Harvey Bailey, who wielded the machine gun in the Kansas City slaying," Hoover said. "Miller will shoot on sight at the slighest provocation. He virtually is a maniac."

UNDERHILL OUT, TOO

Wilbur Underhill and Richard T. Galatas are also sought. Both of these men who have operated chiefly in the middle west have notorious records. All three have served penitentiary terms for various offenses.

Bailey, along with Kelly, one of the "big shot" criminals who have been arrested in the last few months in the justice department's far reaching campaign, is now on trial at Oklahoma City, as one of ten persons charged with the kidnapping of Charles F. Urschel, Oklahoma oil millionaire.

"I expect convictions in this case this week," Hoover said.

"Bailey will then be taken to Kansas City to be tried under state law for the murders in the railroad station there last June. Strangely there is no law penalizing the killing of a federal officer.

In the Kansas City affair, Bailey and his gang attacked a party of peace officers in an apparent attempt to rescue Frank Nash, their prisoner.

GANG IDENTIFIED

Opening fire with machine guns Nash, a department of justice agent an Oklahoma chief of police and two policemen were killed. Two justice department agents were wounded. The killers escaped but since that time most members of the gang have been identified Government agents are on their trails.

There is some question whether "Machine Gun" Kelly was at Kansas City. He was said by Hoover to be a member of the Bailey gang and efforts now are being made to determine his participation.

The federal authorities on Oct 3 will participate in the prosecution of a deputy sheriff and another man who permitted Bailey to escape from jail at Dallas, Texas, Hoover said.

believed washed out into the rivers and drowned when the wall of water surged over the city in the wake of a 120-mile an hour gale and torrential rains.

Dealing mercilessly with looters, six of whom were shot down by the military, General Macias recruited all able-bodied men to aid his troops in bringing some measure of order to the stricken city.

A careful check by General Macias of the damage wrought by the hurricane disclosed that not a single structure escaped. Seventy-five percent of the city's houses were completely or partially destroyed, while the remaining 25 per cent, were damaged.

"I am doing everything possible to re-establish communications," General Macias said.

FOOD NEEDED

Meanwhile, the danger of pestilence grew despite the order by General Macias that all bodies be burned immediately.

With only 400 soldiers on hand, the authorities were handicapped in their clean-up work. General Macias asked that additional troops be sent from Vera Cruz.

Scarcity of food supplies also assumed alarming proportions. Survivors were put on short rations pending re-establishment of train service.

IRISH RIOT HURTS FIFTEEN SERIOUSLY

DUBLIN, Sept. 27.—Fifteen persons were seriously injured and many others were slightly hurt today in a pitched battle between a mob of several thousand and police after the crowd wrecked the front of a British-owned brewery.

The police broke up the riot by repeatedly charging the crowd, swinging batons freely. The attack on the brewery climaxed a recent series of incidents in which mobs have destroyed quantities of British beer.

ELBERT BAKER DIES

CLEVELAND, Sept. 27.—Elbert H. Baker, 79, chairman of the board of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, died early today in Lakeside hospital here after a relapse from a recent abdominal operation.

OHIO CITIES

nounced yesterday by the board, came from the city of Kenton, which asked approval of a project calling for construction of a $442,000 steam-electric power station. The city asked for an outright grant of $112,110 from the federal government and a loan of $330,790.

Strong opposition is expected to develop from friends of various Ohio utility companies. Kenton is already served by the Ohio Power Co.

Defiance, which obtains its electrical energy from the same company, filed a request several weeks ago for approval of a new $342-000 electrical generating plant, asking a grant of $102,000 and a loan of $240,000.

Now served by the Ohio Public Service Co., Hiram has proposed a $31,000 generating plant, with a request for a $9,300 grant and a loan for the remainder.

Due to complaints of utility companies that they might be driven out of business, losing all the money they have invested over a long period of years, the state board will move cautiously in its consideration of such projects. The federal public works administration has announced that competitive power projects will be "eligible" for funds, but has gone no further.

Launching of the Tennessee Valley project, with federal money being used to encourage competition against private firms, has inspired Ohio cities to believe they may receive help of the same type on a smaller scale.

OHIO MANAGER IN STATEMENT CONCERNING HOLC'S IDEALS

The principles upon which the Home Owners' Loan Corporation will fulfill its functions with greater advantage to all holders of home mortgage loans eligible under the Corporation's functions were outlined in a statement received by State Manager Henry G. Brunner from the Federal Home Bank Board at Washington today.

Addressed to mortgage holders who now face the alternative of foreclosure or the sacrifice of past due or future interest, the statement said:

"Inquiries from many thousands of mortgage owners ask whether to accept the 4 per cent bonds of the Corporation in exchange for mortgage loans in difficulty which they now hold. The Board makes clear that the holder would benefit by acceptance to the extent that he would exchange an investment now yielding little or no return for well secured bonds paying a 4 per cent income, guaranteed by the United State Government, during the 18 year life of the bonds, such income being exempt from all taxes except surtaxes and estate, inheritance and gift taxes.

"A second question asked by many holders of mortgages is whether the 4 per cent Corporation bonds may be sold or redeemed at their face value at any time. The Board points out in reply that the Home Owners' Loan Act was passed, not for the purpose of giving such holders cash for their mortgage loans, but as a constructive means of relieving both the lender and the borrower by providing a sound long-term loan under Federal supervision.

"The principal of the bonds is secured by amortized mortgages upon homes fairly and reasonably appraised, and is not due for payment for 18 years. The price of the bonds, therefore, is subject to the law of market supply and demand in exactly the same manner as any other high grade unmatured obligation. The bonds, if accepted and held by investors who fully understand their merits and who wish to enjoy income guaranteed by the United States Government would presumably command a stable market price consistent with their quality and with prevailing money rates."

The announcement concludes by emphasizing that any investor who sells the bonds below their face value would defeat his own interests, since he would find it difficult to invest the proceeds with equal safety in other securities paying an equivalent income return. The statement illustrates this by the fact that if the bonds are sold at a price of 80 for example, the investor would find it necessary to place the funds realized from such sale in other tax exempt securities paying 5 per cent or more in order to obtain as high an income as the 4 per cent yield guaranteed by the Corporation bonds.

FIGURES THAT LIE!

IT is true that the death rate in Ohio from tuberculosis declined from 102 per 100,000 population in 1920 to 55 per 100,000 population in 1932.

But if those figures indicate the struggle against tuberculosis is over, they lie! Imagine 55 out of every 100,000 people in Ohio dying from this dreaded disease. Deaths that could have been prevented, for tuberculosis can be cured—and right here in Ohio.

Let us not look with satisfaction upon the small progress made. Rather let us be concerned about the big task ahead. Let us see that no sufferer from tuberculosis is denied proper care and treatment, that no one be allowed to spread its germs among family, friends or fellow workers.

NOTHING should be permitted to stop the fight against tuberculosis. Every locality should make adequate provision for the care of needy tuberculous patients for the safety and protection of all. Write for free copy of "Blacking Out the White Plague."

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at drug stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

The Medicine Cabinet

ALTHOUGH the purpose of the home medicine cabinet is the protection of health and life, it frequently becomes a source of illness and even death.

The handling of poisons seems to have ample safeguards thrown around it everywhere except in the home. Utmost care is used by the manufacturer who makes it, the physician who prescribes it and the druggest who dispenses it. But as soon as it reaches the home, the safeguards seem to break down. The box or bottle is placed in the medicine cabinet along with a conglomeration of other boxes, bottles and whatnots.

Along may come a child whose attention is attracted to the mysterious collection, and before the mother or father is aware of it a poisonous tablet may have been swallowed. Even adults are not immune to the serious possibilities of the medicine cabinet. Reaching for a harmless remedy in the dark, or with attention diverted elsewhere, may bring fatal results to the man or woman doing the reaching. Many such cases are on record.

The danger is a real one. It is so real that the United States public health service has taken recognition of it in a warning in which it declares that the average person "messes up everything from common baking soda to bichloride of mercury tablets, despite the fact that doctors have issued warning about the danger of having poisons in the home."

If poisons must be kept in the home, the proper way, of course, is to seggregate them and to see that they are out of reach of exploring children. Equal care should be taken to see that they are so placed that there will be no danger of a person mistaking them for a harmless remedy.

Running From Taxes

THE decision of the New York stock exchange to move to New Jersey is of national interest chiefly as emphasizing how harrassing taxes can become and how stifling to business.

The tax situation in New York city is different only in degree from that which prevails in most cities and states throughout the nation. Everywhere exists the need for additional revenus. Dire results are predicted by officials charged with spending public funds if more money is not brought in.

Among the new taxes decreed in New York city—largely a victim of Tammany greed and corruption—is one of 5 per cent on gross revenue of security dealers and another of four cents on each share of stock transferred. This source of revenue already had been tapped by the state.

Stock exchange officials regarded this increased burden as an unjust imposition, with the result that decision was reached to move their business to Newark. New York, after all, will lose all of the revenue it expected to derive from the new taxes affecting the exchange. A more modest levy might not have been resented and would have aforded the city some financial help.

The situation illustrates the danger of burdening business with taxes on top of taxes. It contains a lesson that needs to be learned in nearly every governmental unit in the country. This is that a halt must be made in boosting taxes. Less costly governmental machinery needs to be installed. This coupled with greater economy efforts on the part of officials will bring relief.

CHAPTER XLIII

Maisie went grumbling away. Not for worlds would she let Joan know she was worried . . . terribly worried . . . Joan. Surely Joan wouldn't do anything wrong . . . it couldn't be that . . . and she didn't drink. There was no stale smell of gin in the room . . . Maisie shuddered. She remembered that smell . . . Fanny . . .

"I guess I've had my share of trouble," she told the coffee pot, "Oh well . . . I only hope everythin's all right with Joan. I don't like it . . ."

"You'd better phone Fanny," she said, still in the brusque, scolding tone she used to cover her emotion, "an' tell her I overslep', and you're going to be good and late. Fanny's never anywhere on time herself but I know how she is if anybody else is late."

"Yes," Joan said docilely.

She looked more natural now that she was bathed and dressed for the day. And certainly she had not been crying. That was one good sign. Or Maisie thought it was until she remembered that she had never cried in the old days, when she was eating her heart out for that scoundrel Bill. . . .

"You'd better call her now," Maisie repeated severely.

"All right."

But it was Curtis's number she called when Maisie had gone bustling down the back stairs to complain about the garbage can again, "The rent I pay for this place, an' the service I get . . . worse n' a tenement in Tar Flat. Let me catch that man an 'I'll give him a piece of my mind that'll—"

Maisie's voice rumbling down the stairs, and at the telephone, Joan's small and timid, like a child's—

"Curtis, this is Joan. I'm sorry if I disturbed you . . . I just remembered that it is the Cunningham's dinner dance tonight. Could you tell them I'm ill, please, Curtis? . . . Oh no, no—please don't ask me—I couldn't face them—I couldn't . . . All right, if you think it is best . . . Yes, I'll manage, somehow."

So she had to go, because people would think it queer if she didn't. She'd have to go, and dance and smile, and laugh and talk to Curtis, as if nothing had happened . . . because . . . because he hadn't made up his mind.

"Oh, make him decide soon . . . make him . . . make him . . ." It was her little prayer, that she repeated under her breath all the long day.

"I can't go—I can't—I can't." But she knew she could. "I can do anything," she thought with a strange, detached admiration of her own calm. "I even danced with Bill without screaming . . . and if I can do that . . . I can do anything."

The orchestra was playing when they came in, Joan and Curtis together, for the last time, surely for the last time . . . he wouldn't expect her to do it again . . .

Lights, laughter, music. "Hello, Joan!" "Hello Curtis!"—"Joan, the next dance with me!" The same words, the same people, the same motions. . . . One part of her was alive to them, one part of her smiled, and answered them, ate squab and little green peas . . . and one part was dead . . . not seeing, nor hearing, nor feeling . . . dead, dead . . .

"Curtis is off his oats tonight," Eugenia said.

Mollie Davis looked and laughed. "No, that's just his regular face. Wooden, I call him. I never could see what you saw in him myself—"

"I like that! He was never anything in my life—just a family friend—"

"Look at him mooning at the Hastings girl. If you ask me she carries that Lily Maid of Astolat stuff too far. She looks like something washed up by the tide—"

"Mollie!"

"Well, she does. Did you ever see anything the way he keeps looking at her! He hasn't taken his eyes off her once all evening."

Mollie was right, he hadn't.

He couldn't. When he took her hand to dance with her it burned him coldly, like ice. He was repelled and attracted and torn a dozen ways at once. He saw her white beauty, clear and clean and virginal. Her pathetic childish lips, scarlet in the white of her face. Her deep gray-green eyes, the color of troubled waters, half hidden by the long golden lashes, just deeper than the gold of her hair. Her dear, curly hair that glinted like a halo, a halo of goodness. . . .

And then he'd see her dancing, someone else's arms about her. Someone holding her close, someone whispering to her, loving her perhaps . . . Good God—what if that were the man . . . it might be . . . It might be someone he met every day of his life . . . someone who would take his hand and congratulate him, with his tongue in his cheek, "Lucky boy, Barstow!" Luck boy—getting the girl I love. . . .

He'd wipe his damp forehead . . . that couldn't go on. Impossible to go through life, wondering that way. Better never to see her again.

Never to see her . . . to let her go forever? Joan with the skin like velvet, the sweet red lips . . . Impossible to leave her . . . to give her up now . . . with the wedding date set, and the plans all made. . . .

"I'm going crazy!—Crazy!" he thought desperately.

And when the gaiety was at its height, and the music was mounting to its height of abandon, when she was dancing, laughingly, with Bert Cunningham, he brought her her coat.

"For heaven's sake, let us get out of here," Curtis said.

"For heavens sake, let us get out of here," he said.

Lyla Barstow set down her teacup with a little tinkling sound. "But he must have said something," she said. "It isn't like Curtis to go off without a word!"

"No, he didn't, I didn't see him at all," Joan repeated dully. She had been repeating it for half an hour, but still the inquisition went on.

"Yes, but he wouldn't have gone all the way to Seattle to finish that case alone. Mr. Kennedy himself said it wasn't necessary. He didn't know why Curtis went, and I'm sure I can't understand it. Why should he get on the train so suddenly, and take that long miserable trip when a few telegrams, or even a telephone conversation would have done as well?"

"I don't know, Mrs. Barstow."

"Nonsense—of course, you know. He wouldn't have gone off that way without some reason. You are sure you didn't quarrel, Joan?"

"No, we didn't quarrel."

"Not that there would be any excuse for quarreling with Curtis. There never was anyone so easy to get along with as he. Joan, I don't want to hurt you, but have you understood Curtis? He hasn't been himself since—since this engagement. My dear, do you think you will make him happy? Wouldn't it be better—"

Joan just twisted her handkerchief in her hands.

"You see what I mean. If you can't get along, surely it is better to admit it now. Much as I'd hate to see it broken off—"

She stopped and sighed. Miserable to have to break it now, and still . . . and still . . . to have him to herself again . . . how heavenly that would be . . .

"But we didn't quarrel," Joan said.

"Well—"

The next day she began all over again, telephoning to Joan bright and early, at the shop. "Joan? This is Mrs. Barstow. You haven't heard from Curtis? I can't understand it. Really, I think you are keeping something from me. Do you think that is fair, my dear? Don't you think that as his mother I am entitled to some consideration, some confidence? What's that? . . . I can't hear you? . . . You haven't heard at all? Well, do get in touch with me when you do. I'm wiring Baker's in Seattle. I don't know why he doesn't write—"

Baker's reported briefly and collect that Mr. Barstow had not as yet called at their office.

Curtis had no intention of calling at Baker's. As Kennedy said, the work there was finished. He simply went because he had to go somewhere, and it was the first place that occurred to him. He had to get away from Joan and San Francisco. Had to get away to think. . . .

And besides—there was Blanche.

It was lonely in the hotel, lonely and quiet. Too rainy and dismal to walk in the parks. He couldn't think any better here than he could home . . . he was a fool to have come . . .

He went down to the desk to see about a ticket home. No, he wasn't ready to go back yet. Not for a little while. He'd run out and see Blanche, Blanche would be home . . .

Blanche had housekeeping rooms in an old house way out on Fifth Street. It was amazing what Blanche had accomplished with a few yards of yellow chintz, and a can of green paint. Blanche was a great housekeeper, and a great cook. He got to thinking about her chicken with mushrooms and garlic, Italian style, and a big dish of spaghetti on the side . . . that, and a couple of bottles of beer . . .

"Sure!" she said when he telephoned, "Bring the chicken, and I'll get busy on it. I got six bottles of good beer Ferd brought in on the last trip. . . . No, he ain't in port now, not until the 22nd. Gee, I'm glad you're in town. I was kinda lonesome. Gloria has been talkin' about you, too. Only this morning she said to me, 'Mamma, why don't Uncle Curt come no more?'—the poor kid, she likes you!"

waters, terror to all but the most skillful navigators, and traditional among men who follow the sea, figures in the thrilling details of "Tugboat Annie," in which Marie Dressler and Wallace Beery co-star in their first appearance since "Min and Bill." The new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, based on Norman Reilly Raine's Saturday Evening Post tales of the feminine tugboat skipper, now showing at the Cliftona Theatre. The film is to be shown an extra day as a result of the remarkable attendance and ovation offered by patrons.

The "inside passage" is a channel formed by the mainland on one side and thousands of small islands, with channels between that deceive and mislead the mariner into reefs and other perils.

Favorite Course Northward

Because the islands protect the "inside passage" from heavy storms, it is a favorite course northward. Countless legends have arisen about the islands, many of them still unexplored. Famous sea captains made history there during the Klondyke days and became tradition because of their skill in negotiating the dangerous channel.

AT THE GRAND

The thin line which separates genius from madness, a great conqueror from an arrant rascal, saint from lowliest sinner, has its counterpart in the movies.

The villian quite often becomes the hero.

And when that happens, a player's whole life, his outlook on everything—even his fan mail—changes.

Such a change has come recently to Lyle Talbot, who comes to the Grand Theater on Wednesday in the Warner Bros., mystery thriller, "Girl Missing."

Will Rogers Picks A Story For This Spot

By WILL ROGERS

THERE is a guy in Milwaukee that claims he was driving along a road about twenty miles out of town one night late and come across a good-looking woman bawling her eyes out, setting in the middle of the road. You understand, I don't believe it. This guy just brags about his luck.

He stops his car and says, "Goodness me, pretty lady, what you bawling about?"

"Why, we're going to have waffles and honey for breakfast at my home in Milwaukee tomorrow!"

"Well, that's a funny thing to bawl about, sure enough!"

"Funny, is it, smarty!" she says. "It ain't so funny twenty miles from home and not a drop of gas left!"

Questions and Answers

Is there a difference between pimento and pimiento?

Pimento as used for flavoring is an allspice obtained from the dried, unripe, aromatic berries of the pimento tree. Pimiento is the Spanish name for red sweet peppers. The Americanized spelling of pimiento has become pimento and the terms are used almost interchangeably in reference to the pepper. The spice is not common.

What is Creole Corn Chowder and how is it made?

Creole Corn Chowder is a chowder made from fresh green corn or canned corn, that is about as thick as a puree. When served it is poured hot over crackers.

Put ¼ cup butter in a saucepan and brown one chopped onion and two chopped green peppers from which the white membrane and seeds have been removed. Add one cup of corn, either fresh or canned. Add two cups of stock, water or milk, and thicken with 2 tablespoons of flour and stir until it boils. Add 2 cups of strained tomato, and 1 teaspoonful of sugar and stir until it boils once more. To serve pour hot over six to twelve crackers. If made the day before serving and allowed to stand, the flavor will be much improved.

What is the correct temperature for cream puffs?

A standardized temperature chart for oven use states that cream puffs and eclairs should be baked in an oven set at 450 degrees for the first 20 to 25 minutes. Set the thermostat dial to 350 degrees and leave the cream puffs in the oven to dry out thoroughly for the remaining time which will be 30 to 35 minutes. The total baking period will be from 50 to 60 minutes. Cream puffs will be soggy unless they are baked thoroughly to dry out the cavity shaped in the baking.

Nothing like it has been seen in any other part of the New Deal. Disgruntled contractors have joined in the battle. They have resorted to anonymous letters, below-the-belt jabs, anything to discredit Ickes, anything to put through the 942 buildings.

But Ickes has been holding the ace. This is a secret committee of three, working quietly behind the scenes, applying the magnifying glass to the 942 buildings, to see the most flagrant pieces of pork.

Soon a report will be issued on those buildings which are not a dead loss to the community, on which construction will be rushed. It will satisfy most of the howls from Congress.

QUERIES, ANSWERS CONCERNING HOLC

Q. What class of borrowers can be relieved by the Corporation?

A. Only those who are in distress, not through any fault of their own, but due to the present conditions. But who are delinquent with their loans or are owing principal and interest, or back taxes, and whose homes are badly in need of necessary repairs.

Q. On what kind of property will the Corporation make mortgage loans?

A. The Corporation will make loans on homes occupied by the owners or held by them as their homesteads, although temporarily not occupied by the owner; and a value not exceeding $20,000.00, and built for not more than four (4) families; and where the lien to be liquidated is on record as of June 13, 1933. The property must be in fee simple or on a lease held under a renewable lease for not less than 99 years and including the interest of a vendor under a purchase money mortgage or contract.

Q. Is a loan in distress when the borrower is in default on interest of taxes, or both, but no foreclosure threatened?

A. Even though foreclosure proceedings have not been threatened, in many cases it is found that the borrower is in distress due to the fact that there may be back taxes and in default for interest and principal. This is governed by the individual case. For instance, the applicant may not be in distress as far as the first mortgage is concerned, but where there is a second mortgage and they have threatened foreclosure, certainly this person is in distress.

Q. What percentage of the appraised value of the property will the Corporation lend in bonds?

A. The Corporation will loan 80 per cent of our appraisers' value in Home Owners' Loan Corporation Bonds.

Q. What is the maximum of cash allowed to pay taxes and repairs above the amount of the bonds.

A. Cash will be advanced to pay all back taxes that are due and on the books in the County Treasurer's Office; repairs are these which are necessary as determined by our appraisers on which bids will be received from responsible contractors and made a part of the loan.

Q. Will the Corporation make a cash loan where the amount requested is 40 per cent or less of the appraised value of the property?

A. Where the creditor will not accept bonds and the situation is especially acute.

Q. Is the principal of these bonds guaranteed by the Government? If not, what security is back of these bonds?

A. The principal is not guaranteed by the Government. However, the United States Treasury has subscribed for $200,000,000 of stock in the Corporation. The bonds are further secured by every mortgage that is taken by the Home Owners' Loan Corporation, which, of course, is only first mortgages. The Home Owners' Loan Corporation is an instrumentality of the United States the bonds are not guaranteed as Meaning, of course, even through to principal the government is back of this corporation.

Laughing Around the World

Nothing Doing in the Fish Line

By IRVIN S. COBB

SOME people insist that measuring, class by class, the lowest order of human intelligence in America is found among Key West sponge fishermen. Others hold that the group-place at the foot of the column properly belongs to a certain order of theatrical produc-

ers. As proof of the value of their contention they point to the story of the theatrical manager, who, on being told that a play brought him by a certain dramatist was based upon one of Charles Dickens' novels, said:

"Well, you get hold of this fellow Dickens and bring him around to lunch tomorrow and we'll get his ideas and fix up a contract."

Without any desire to take part in the controversy over the respective merits of the theatrical managers and the Key West sponge-fishers, I herewith submit, for what it may be worth, an incident which happened in the office of a prominent producing manager, whose name is a household word in every actor's home. To him there came an experienced playwright bearing the script of a new piece which he had just finished.

"I don't want you should read it to me, now," said the manager. "Just tell me what it's like."

"Well," said the playwright, "it's a historical drama in five acts. I call it The Dauphin."

"For why do you call it that?"

"Because it's based on the story of the Lost Dauphin."

"I don't want it," said the manager emphatically. "It wouldn't go. The public wouldn't never stand for a play about a fish."

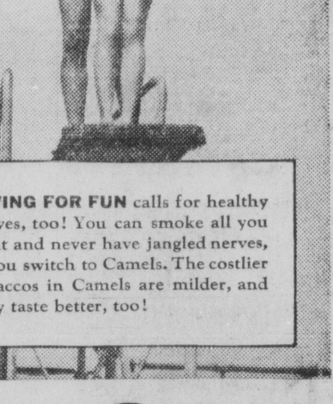
IT TAKES HEALTHY NERVES TO DIVE TO THE BOTTOM OF THE SEA

FRANK CRILLEY, champion deep-sea diver of the world, retired naval diver, holder of the Congressional Medal of Honor, the Navy Cross and other decorations, about to go over the side in a nerve-wracking, deep-sea descent. Crilley says: "I smoke Camels and have smoked them for years. They are a milder cigarette and they taste better. But more important than that to me—they never upset my nervous system."



DIVING FOR FUN calls for healthy nerves, too! You can smoke all you want and never have jangled nerves, if you switch to Camels. The costlier tobaccos in Camels are milder, and they taste better, too!

A MATCHLESS BLEND

IT IS MORE FUN TO KNOW
Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand.

Steady Smokers turn to Camels

FRANK CRILLEY says: "Deep down under 300 feet of water, working feverishly under terrific pressure—no place for a nervous man! That's why a diver's nerves must always be in perfect condition. And that's why I smoke Camels and have smoked them for years. They are a milder cigarette and they taste better. But more important than that to me—they never upset my nervous system." His heroic feats prove his statement.

Camel's costlier tobaccos are milder, do taste better. They never get on the nerves. Men and women whose very lives depend on healthy nerves have discovered this. Your nerves will confirm it. Start smoking Camels today and learn the difference.

Hull Considering Hardest Critic for Pan-American Post

WASHINGTON—Not many people really got to know Cordell Hull during his long term in the House and Senate, but those who did sized him up as a silent, broad-gauged, open-minded Jeffersonian Democrat with a strong yen for championing the under dog.

As Secretary of State these qualities are slowly coming to the surface. Hull's latest move is to select tentatively Ernest Gruening, his most hard-hitting critic on Cuba, as a member of the American delegation to the Pen-American Conference in Montevideo.

Gruening, editor of the liberal weekly, The Nation, last week called Hull's Cuban policy "muddling with a vengeance." He said that Ambassador Welles "committed a curious and needless slip" in denying recognition to the Grau San Martin government. He indicated that Welles was "piqued" because the De Cespedes government, which he helped to create, had failed.

Gruening, if his appointment goes through, will act as co-delegate with Welles in Montevideo.

Hull figures that clash of opinion is a good thing, "jogs career diplomats out of their ruts."

Packers' Code

The fight over the Meat Packers' code has developed a wide though carefully guarded rift in the Department of Agriculture.

On one side are the Department's liberals. They describe the proposed Packers' Code as one of the rawest deals private enterprise has tried to put over on the farmer. This side includes Secretary Wallace, himself.

On the other side are conservatives led by George Peek, a former associate of Barney Baruch, former executive of the Moline Plow Company. Peek understands the packers' point of view and is thoroughly honest in his convictions.

The friction has come to such a climax that during recent hearings on the Packers' Code, extraordinary steps were taken to see that no inkling of the rift leaked out to the public.

Ordinarily, different members of the Agricultural Department ask questions orally at these hearings. But it was realized that the asking of these questions would indicate the bitterness of some members.

So orders came down from Peek that all questions were to be asked in writing. Little slips of paper were to be handed up to the Chairman, who was to read off the question without the name of the inquisitor being known.

Then Peek, himself, came down to watch the proceedings. Harmony was preserved.

Secret Ace

"Honest Harold" Ickes has a secret Public Works ace he is holding to trump Congress.

No man in the New Deal Cabinet has been more popular with the general public than Honest Harold, and no man more unpopular with members of Congress. The reason is easy to understand.

One year ago Congress passed a public works bill providing for the construction of 942 post offices, immigration stations and customs building throughout the United States. The bill was passed almost over the dead body of Herbert Hoover. He protested to the very end, virtually held his nose and cried "PORK!" as he signed it.

Nevertheless the bill became law.

Seven months passed. Nothing happened. It takes time to approve leases and let contracts under any administration. Finally Congress, acting at the behest of Roosevelt, threw the entire 942 buildings into the giant $3,300,000,000 public works bill.

Under Roosevelt, Congress expected prompt action. Imagine its irritation, therefore, to find that F. D. R. and Ickes felt very much the same way about post offices as did Hoover.

They are opposed to PORK.

So against Honest Harold there has been a terrific under cover war by members of Congress.

10 DESPERATE CRIMINALS TAKE SHERIFF, FLEE PRISON; EASTERN RIOT ENDED TODAY

Several Indiana Prisoners Believed Trapped Near Chesterton

FEAR FOR OFFICER

Part of Men Fleeing in Stolen Auto

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind. Sept. 27.—An army of more than 500 officers and vigilantes today were scouring northern Indian for ten desperate armed convicts who escaped from the state penitentiary here, taking as hostage Sheriff Charles Neel of Harrison-co. A prison clerk was shot and probably fatally wounded in the break for liberty.

Officers directing the manhunt expressed fears for the sefety of Sheriff Neel after residents northwest of Valpariso sighted the four convicts who had seized Neel, as the felons fled into a woods near Liberty Center witnesses noted that the sheriff was no longer in the group.

One hundred possemen surrounded the wooded tract, but early today reported that no trace o fthe fugitives could be found.

OTHERS IN AUTO

Five other convicts were being hunted on highways leading into Lafayette, Ind., whence they fled in a stolen automobile. Posses were hunting the tenth convict near here.

Clerk Finley Carson, 72 year old, was shot and critically wounded when the ten long term prisoners fought their way to freedom late yesterday with smuggled guns. Several guards and officials were slugged in the break.

All of the fugitives were long term robbers and murderers. Capt. Matt Leach of the Indiana state police described the men as "the ten worst men in the prison."

Police of 40 towns were cooperating in the manhunt, searching highways, side roads and farm tracts throughout the night in a driving rain.

CAPTURED SHERIFF

Gaining their liberty, the felons seized Sheriff Neel, who had just delievered a consignment of prisoners, commandeered his automobile and two other cars and split into two main groups. The sheriff's car was wrecked near Wheeler, Ind., and the convicts seized another car from Cecil Spanier and continued their flight.

Luring J. H. Stevens, superintendent of the shirt factory into the basement. On a trumped up complaint, the prisoners prodded a gun into his back and ordered him to lead the way across the prison yard and into the front guard room. Deputy Warden Albert Evans was made a prisoner in the same manner, and the convicts made their escape.

WARDEN IS BEATEN

Check-Up Shows No Prisoners Escaped

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 27.—Crowded conditions that forced him to place as many as four prisoners in a cell and a shortage of guards were blamed today by Warden Herbert J. Smith for the general riot staged by convicts at the 103-year-old Eastern penitentary last night.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 27. — Battering inmates with high pressure fire hoses while nearly 300 city and state police armed with sub-machine guns, rifles and tear gas grenades prepared to storm the prison, authorities early today broke up a general riot staged by virtually the entire population of the Eastern state penitentiary.

Enraged at revocation of special privilages following disclosure of an attempted jail break last week, the prisoners started the bedlam, worst staged at the prison in its 103 years, shortly after messtime.

Convicts seized mattresses, set them afire and thrust them into the corridors radiating from the central lookout post.

WARDEN BEATEN

A group seized Herbert J Smith, warden of the prison, and beat him severely with a piece of steel bar wrenched from a cot before the guards rescued him.

Wardens and guards, locked from the cell tiers by the barricade of flaming matresses, strove futilely to subdue the bedlam of shouting, cursing and hammering on cell bars and windows. Several of the felons had to be removed from their cells to save them.

As police raced to the prison and flung a guard around it to prevent any convicts going over

Three Would Build To Oppose Utilities, Others Ask Additional Cash.

COLUMBUS, Sept. 27.—A bold move to break the grip of the privately-owned utility companies in Ohio has been started by a group of cities which are using the great Tennessee Valley project as their guide-post, the state public works advisory board revealed today.

A growing movement is being pushed by these cities toward the construction of municipally-owned plants with the aid of federal public works funds. The plants would compete against private companies.

Three cities—Kenton, Defiance and Hiram—have made appeals for money to construct complete new municipal electric plants to compete against private firms, while three others—Columbus, Shelby and Montpelier—have requested funds to make additions to their present properties.

TAMPICO, Mexico, Sept. 27.—The rich oil port of Tampico, ravaged by a hurricane and floods, was menaced again today by a new rise in the waters of the Panuco and Tamesi rivers.

General Anselmo Macias, military commanndant here who has has been heading relief work, sent a wireless message to President Abelardo Rodriguez in Mexico City advising him the new threat to the safety of survivers.

The water rose again in the inundated streets of the city as rescue workers strove to care for the hundreds injured in the disaster and probed in sodden ruins for the bodies of additional dead.

Definitely established dead in Tampico and Cardenas stood at 78, this being the number of bodies recovered. Rescue workers expressed fears that many remained buried in the ruins in inundated areas where exploration has not yet been possible.

Donahey to Aid Repeal Effort

Former Governor To Make Series of Talks Prior To November Election; Refuses To Discuss Senatorial Aspirations.

COLUMBUS, Sept. 27.—Former Governor Vic Donahey, potential Democratic candidate for U. S. Senator, will campaign for repeal of the 18th amendment in a series of speeches he will deliver prior to the Nov. 7 election, he told International News Service today.

Donahey, three-times governor and former state auditor, declared he is for repeal because he is convinced "we can't get anywhere under the present liquor control system" and that he will make speeches urging Ohio to vote for repeal "because I have always believed it my duty to tell the public where I stand."

He will also come out openly, he said, in favor of the proposed constitutional amendment to cut the real estate tax limitation from 15 to 10 mills.

SILENT ON OTHERS

No indication was given as to what will be his stand on two other proposed amendments—one to provide for country home rule government, and the other to establish a system of old age pension by law.

Political significance should not be attached to his speeches, the formed governor asserted.

"Several hundreds of letters have come to me," he explained, "asking my position on these proposed amendments. Through a few speeches, I will give my answer."

Donahey reiterated that definite announcement as to whether he will be a candidate for U. S. senator will not be made until January. He refused to discuss the possible candidacy of Governor White.

He has no intention, he declared, of emphasizing his stand on prohibition repeal above the other proposed amendments, although he admitted that the importance of the liquor question may focus more attention on his attitude on that issue.

NOAH HILL DIES OF SHOTGUN INJURIES

Wound Suffered Accidentally Last Sunday Morning Is Fatal.

WAS CITY NATIVE

Leaves Two Brothers; Rites To Be Thursday.

Noah Hill, 46, colored, died at Berger hospital at 5:20 p. m. Tuesday of complications following a gun shot wound.

He was taken to Berger hospital early Sunday by officers who were called to his house after Mr. Hill was alleged to have shot himself in the leg with a shotgun. The shooting was termed accidental by officials who investigated.

When taken to the hospital the man was suffering from loss of blood. His leg was badly lacerated and the bone fractured.

He insisted that his leg not be amputated if there was any possible chance to save it. A bacilli common after gun shot wounds in the war developed in his leg and, after he developed a high fever, he passed away.

Mr. Hill was a native and lifelong resident of Circleville being born here in 1887.

Two half brothers, Esdras and Thomas Hill, both of this city, survive.

Funeral services will be Thursday at 3 p. m. at the Albaugh chapel with Rev. R. D. Grant officiating. Interment will be in Forest cemetery.

THIEVES ENTER MORRIS' HOME

Pocketbook Containing Money Stolen While N. Court-St Family Is Asleep.

Police, Wednesday, were seeking clues in a daring robbery during the night at the home of J. Monroe Morris, 706 N. Court-st, when a pocketbook was taken from the trousers pocket of Mr. Morris' son, Ralph.

The amount of money stolen was not definitely set but it was believed to be near $10.

A screen was removed from a downstairs window by the thieves who crept up the stairs, past Ralph's bed and to a clothes closet where the pocketbook was stolen. The empty pocketbook was found in the downstairs when the family arose this morning.

The only clues police have are a screw driver, used apparently to remove the screen which was placed beside the house when taken from its place, and two coat-hangers found outside the house this morning.

New Holland's Three Rural Routes To Be Consolidated on November 1

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Pay raises for two rural mail carriers at the postoffice at New Holland, Pickaway County, and a transfer for the third, will result from the postoffice department's economy program, it was announced at the department today.

The three routes now operated from New Holland are to be consolidated into two, effective November 1. The government will save money in spite of the pay raises, because pay for rural routes is on a sliding scale, and is less per mile as the mileage of individual route increases.

Wayne Wood, carrier on route 3, will be transferred to Frankfort, Ohio, and his route split up between the present routes 1 and 2.

Earl C. McQuay, carrier on route 1, will have his distance increased from 31.9 miles to 39.46 miles, and will get a pay boost from $2040 to $2250.

Don F. Asher on route 2, will take on additional milage to bring his route up from 27.2 miles to 42.31 miles, and will get a pay raise from $1890 to $2340.

Improved methods of transportation are what make such consolidations possible, officials of the department explained. Most of the existing rural routes are laid out in the horse and buggy days, they pointed out.

MERRELL TO SEEK PUBLIC WORKS CASH FOR PROJECT

N. & W. Tracks to River Bridge Included in Project; S. Court-st Job Considered Too Large for City This Size Under U. S. Plan; Delegation Brings Action

COLUMBUS, Sept. 27. — Approval of a $17,000 public works project for Circleville, involving the improvement of 1500 feet of U. S. route 22 west on the west edge of the city, was announced today by the state highway department.

The present 16-foot street, which is of old waterbound macadam, will be paved 24 feet wide, giving employment to from 50 to 75 men for at least two months, under plans which Highway Director O.

Members of the delegation which attended the hearing in the highway department's office included Mayor B. T. Hedges, Service Director A. J. Lyle, Commissioners John Hay, Burr Rader and Ralph May, County Engineer J. Howard Sweetman, Deputy Engineer Ralph Wood, City Engineer Harry Griner, Councilmen T. M. Barnes, F. A. Marion, C. O. Leist and Clark Will, and Frank Marion Jr.

W. Merrell will submit to federal officials, with a request for their approval. The announcement followed a conference with Circleville officials.

Officials of the department also announced that the state will pave 1900 feet of state route 56, also inside the city, "as soon as funds are available." This is estimated to cost from $12,000 to $15,000.

DECISION WITHHELD

A proposal to pave approximately one and one-eighth miles of Court-st in Circleville, making needed repairs, was also discussed at the conference with Circleville officials, but the highway department withheld decision.

Bids will be asked almost immediately and work will be started within a few weeks on the federal project if Washington officials give their consent.

All the expense would be paid from the federal public works fund, as distributed by the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads. Much of the construction could be done yet this fall, although the completion probably would have to be delayed until spring, according to H. P. Chapman, assistant director.

LYLE IS LEADER

A. J. Lyle, service director of Circleville, led a delegation which laid the plans before Chapman here yesterday.

Clyde Moyer, the department's planning engineer, was instructed to complete plans as quickly as possible for submitting to Washington.

The State Route 56 project is not eligible for federal public works fund, Chapman ruled, because the street is not a part or an extension of the federal system, as is required.

Although work on that street, now of gravel, was promised "as soon as funds are available," this does not mean that the work will be attempted this year or even next year, Chapman declared. He said the speed with which the state route proposal will be handled will depend entirely upon the funds.

Doubt was expressed privately among highway department officials as to the likelihood of the Court-st proposal being approved.

Although a part of the federal system, this project, it was said, is too large for a city of the size of Circleville, judged from the type of projects which the U. S. Bureau of Roads has been approving recently.

FIFTY POLICE GUARD KELLY

'Gunner' Makes Threats He Will Be Out Soon; Bond Is $200,000.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 27.—Shelby-co jail was an armed fortress today as an army of police guarded George "Machine Gun" Kelly, notorious desperado who with his wife, Kathryn, is being held for extradition to Oklahoma City for trial in the Charles F. Urschel kidnaping.

Fifty police and federal operatives will guard the gangster continuously until the journey.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 27.—Capture of George "Machine Gun" Kelly forestalled a campaign of murders the desperado was planning, authorities learned today from his wife Kathryn, who is charged jointly with Kelly in the Charles F. Urschel kidnaping.

Oklahoma City begins. Three machine guns are trained on Kelly's cell to prevent him from making good the sneering boast, "I'll be out of this in no time."

Secretly arraigned in their cells last night Kelly and his Titian-wigged young wife pleaded not guilty and were held in default of $100,000 bonds by Commissioner Lester Brennan on warrants charging them with abduction of Urschel, millionaire oil man whose family paid $200,000 for his release.

Kelly indicated they would fight extradition to Oklahoma.

Mrs. E. C. Rutter, of Lancaster, enroute to the Garden club meeting here today, was uninjured and the automobile she was driving and the car driven by Fred F. Darling, of Gallipolis, collided where Routes 22 and 56 meet on E. Main-st.

Several other women with Mrs. Rutter were unhurt and Darling, his wife and another woman were also uninjured.

Darling's car was able to leave the accident under its own power.

game starts at 3 p. m. with Boyd of Lancaster to referee and Uridil of Columbus to umpire.

Gaines Hill, backfield mainstay, has an 'ouchy' shoulder and has not been able to put forth his best efforts in practice this week. Should he be forced to the sidelines both offense and defense would be sorely handicapped.

Billy Steele, who played a nice game at end against Lancaster, has not been in school all week and George Speakman, halfback, has a bruised neck and is suffering with a heavy cold. Willis Camp, tackle, has a bruised right leg and, although in school, has not been able to practice football.

Jimmy Lyle and Walter Osborne, substitutes, are also unable to workout.

Coach Pete Herberholz has been working on several combinations fearing that several of the injured will not be available for Friday's tilt. He faces a mighty difficult task.

Holy Rosary is expected to provide plenty of opposition to the Tigers. The team defeated Mt. Sterling last Friday by a 25-0 score and when it is considered that Bexley defeated Mt. Sterling by a 26-0 score then went on to hold Columbus North Hi to a scoreless draw, Rosary must be tough.

A price scale of 25 cents for adults, 15 cents for students and 10 cents for grade pupils will prevail, Principal E. I. Gephart announced Wednesday.

The initial Central Buckeye league game for the Tigers will be played at Bexley the Friday of Pumpkin Show week.

COLLEGE BOY IS SUPERIOR TO DAD

Proven to Be a Better Man Physically.

Chicago.—It may be a different story when the psychologists get around to checking up—but physically, the collegian of today is a better man than his dad. Statistics prove that it's so, in the exhibit operated under the auspices of the anthropology department of Harvard university in the Hall of Science at A Century of Progress. They're hot on the trail of such distinctions there, in the booth that is a focal point for constantly growing, interested crowds.

C. W. Dupertius, research student at Harvard, and his staff spend their days setting down painstakingly detailed measurements and complexion data on the subjects who offer themselves for the purpose. Practically everybody has an avid curiosity to learn all he can about his ancestry and racial strains, it seems, and to date, 1,900 of these extensive reports have been compiled for future analysis and report. The demand is so great now for such consultations that it has necessitated the making of appointments a day ahead.

Study of approximately thirty individuals per day has convinced the staff of the accuracy of its findings with respect to the present generation of boy and girl college students. Thus when the measurements taken a generation ago are compared with those accruing from these World's fair studies the youngsters win, hands down.

They're taller, broader of shoulder, thicker through the torso, slimmer of hip and longer of leg than their immediate ancestors, the charts reveal. The situation is the same in both feminine and masculine charts, except that thirty years ago or so they didn't, it appears, have the nerve to measure mother's knees—so that item of comparison with her athletic daughter's goes unsolved.

"What we are most interested in discovering," explains Mr. Dupertuis, "is whether any definite, composite racial type of American is being evolved by the conditions of life in this country today—whether one outstanding type has emerged from the melting pot, as it were. But we think that there will be a number of illuminating things revealed as a result of this study."

Dresses for the young school child should hang from the shoulder, say clothing specialists.

RAIN HALTS TITLE FRAY

Red Birds and Bisons To Try Again Tonight; Heise May Be Pitcher.

COLUMBUS, Sept. 27.—Weather permitting, play in the Junior World Series between the Columbus Red Birds and the Buffalo Bisons, now deadlocked at one game each, will be resumed here tonight.

The third game, scheduled for last night, was called on account of rain, and rescheduled for tonight. The game originally planned for tonight was moved over until tomorrow night, after which the series will move to Buffalo.

Clarence Heise, leading pitcher of the American Association, was slated to get the call for the Birds tonight, and Manager Ray Schalk of the Bisons will nominate Phil Gallivan, his ace right-hander who performed well in a relief role here in the opener Sunday.

Fifteen hundred spectators were in the stadium last night when President Thomas J. Hickey of the American Association announced the game's postponement.

News of the delay was received cheerfully by the players themselves, for it meant an extra day's pay to them. The Bisons International League champs, spilled first blood in the series by winning the opener 7 to 6, while the Birds retaliated by taking the second Monday to the tune of 8-4.

Our Post Service Dates From February 17, 1691

The beginning of the American post proper dates from the signing of a patent vesting Thomas Neale with postal jurisdiction, February 17, 1691. On April 4, the same year, Neale and the royal postmaster general appointed Andrew Hamilton postmaster general of America. He was required to establish an intercolonial post. He visited all the colonies and secured from all except Virginia pledges of co-operation. The service began May 1, 1693, and consisted of weekly posts from Portsmouth, N. H., to Boston, Saybrook, New York, Philadelphia, Maryland and Virginia, five riders to cover each of the five stages twice each week. Hamilton died in 1703 and was succeeded by his son, John Hamilton. From 1707 to the outbreak of the Revolution the general post office in London controlled the system in America. Mail moved weekly between Boston and Maine in 1711 and between New York and Williamsburg, Va., in 1717. There was a fortnightly service between Philadelphia and Annapolis in 1727.

A new chapter was opened with the appointment of Benjamin Franklin as deputy postmaster in America, 1737. Sixteen years later he was named postmaster general with Col. William Hunter. The printer-philosopher made a tour of all the post offices in his jurisdiction, omitting only Charleston. Difficulties with Governor Hutchinson of Massachusetts in 1774 resulted in his dismissal. But the system which he had developed survived him, and when the Continental post office department was created, with headquarters at Philadelphia, he was elected postmaster general and resumed charge, July 26, 1775.

The Continental congress authorized the establishment of a line of posts between New Hampshire and Georgia "and to such other places as congress might direct." Rates of postage, fixed by law, were: Single letters, under 60 miles, 7.4; 60 to 100 miles, 11.1 cents; 100 to 200 miles, 14.8 cents; and 3.4 cents additional for each 100 miles.

Findlay College's coaching staff today continued to debate over line choices for the Denison game Friday. Nelson Jones of Fremont and Wilmer Deckard of Middletown, Pa., waged a keen fight for the center berth.

At Oxford, Coach Frank Wilton replaced his regular guards, Rentz and Carmean, with Bob Kaiser and Ned Brooks. Miami officials received word that Indiana U. heads, who had been dissatisfied at being scouted Saturday, were convinced that Miami acted innocently.

Rare Mice Discovered by California Expert

Sequoia National Park, Calif.—A rare species of mice, equipped with pockets in which they carry food, was discovered here by Prof. Joseph Dixon, University of California mammalogist.

Professor Dixon found the little animals on Yucca Point at an altitude considerably above that normally sought by mice.

He described them as part of one of the most interesting "triangles" in nature. Seeds of the yucca plant are scattered by white Yucca moths, picked up by the pocket mice and carried to their burrows, where forgotten, they take root and grow.

The two birds have been in twelve states in twelve weeks and have traveled from the Gulf to the Great Lakes three times.

Mrs. Coolidge Also Known for Silence

Washington.—While Mrs. Calvin Coolidge was noted as one of the most brilliant conversationalists who ever graced the position of First Lady of the Land, she was also as silent as President Coolidge from a public point of view.

During the years she was in the White House and as wife of the Vice President of the United States, Mrs. Coolidge never made a public speech or allowed herself to be interviewed on a public question.

Her theory was that the first commandment of a politician's wife should be: "Thou Shalt Not Talk Politics." Mrs. Coolidge did, ocasionally, see writers for newspapers or magazines and was most gracious in helping them with their stories, but never as coming from her.

Question as to whether he favors a sales tax or a utilities tax as a replacement levy for the real estate tax, he replied:

Seed and Grain Cleaner
Saturday, Sept. 30th

Come in Saturday and see how the Vac-A-Way cleans and grades any seed grown on your farm. The Vac-A-Way Seed and Grain Cleaner is more than a fanning-mill. It does more than just take out the dirt and chaff. It enables the farmer to do the work of cleaning and separating his seed . . . and do it RIGHT.

INCREASE YOUR YIELD AND PROFITS WITH VAC-A-WAY

With the aid of a Vac-A-Way you can "Breed-up" your crops in the way that is constantly being advocated by the agricultural colleges. You can feed corn through your planter of uniform size and thereby eliminate unplanted hills due to the wedging of seed in the drill. The extra yield obtainable from clean seed will quickly pay the small cost of VAC-A-WAY and leave you larger profits from then on, because with proper care the VAC-A-WAY Seed and Grain Cleaner will last a lifetime.

"THAT LITTLE GAME"—A DULL TRIP

Federals Turn Activities To Kansas City Massacre

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27. — Dramatically concluding the round up of the Urschel kidnappers with the arrest of George "Machine Gun" Kelly and his wife, Rose Shannon Kelly, the justice department today turned its major attention to the Kansas City massacre of last June when five were slain.

Three of the suspected Kansas City slayers are still at large.

One of them is Verne C. Miller, a bandit with a long criminal record, regarded by J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the division of investigation as the most demoniacal criminal at large today.

"I regard Miller as a more dangerous man than Harvey Bailey, who wielded the machine gun in the Kansas City slaying," Hoover said. "Miller will shoot on sight at the slighest provocation. He virtually is a maniac."

UNDERHILL OUT, TOO

Wilbur Underhill and Richard T. Galatas are also sought. Both of these men who have operated chiefly in the middle west have notorious records. All three have served penitentiary terms for various offenses.

Bailey, along with Kelly, one of the "big shot" criminals who have been arrested in the last few months in the justice department's far reaching campaign, is now on trial at Oklahoma City, as one of ten persons charged with the kidnapping of Charles F. Urschel, Oklahoma oil millionaire.

"I expect convictions in this case this week," Hoover said.

"Bailey will then be taken to Kansas City to be tried under state law for the murders in the railroad station there last June. Strangely there is no law penalizing the killing of a federal officer.

In the Kansas City affair, Bailey and his gang attacked a party of peace officers, in an apparent attempt to rescue Frank Nash, their prisoner.

GANG IDENTIFIED

Opening fire with machine guns Nash, a department of justice agent an Oklahoma chief of police and two policemen were killed. Two justice department agents were wounded. The killers escaped but since that time most members of the gang have been identified. Government agents are on their trails.

There is some question whether "Machine Gun" Kelly was at Kansas City. He was said by Hoover to be a member of the Bailey gang and efforts now are being made to determine his participation.

The federal authorities on Oct 3 will participate in the prosecution of a deputy sheriff and another man who permitted Bailey to escape from jail at Dallas, Texas, Hoover said.

believed washed out into the rivers and drowned when the wall of water surged over the city in the wake of a 120-mile an hour gale and torrential rains.

Dealing mercilessly with looters, six of whom were shot down by the military, General Macias recruited all able-bodied men to aid his troops in bringing some measure of order to the stricken city.

A careful check by General Macias of the damage wrought by the hurricane disclosed that not a single structure escaped. Seventy-five percent of the city's houses were completely or partially destroyed, while the remaining 25 per cent, were damaged.

"I am doing everything possible to re-establish communications," General Macias said.

Meanwhile, the danger of pestilence grew despite the order by General Macias that all bodies be burned immediately.

With only 400 soldiers on hand, the authorities were handicapped in their clean-up work. General Macias asked that additional troops be sent from Vera Cruz.

Scarcity of food supplies also assumed alarming proportions. Survivors were put on short rations pending re-establishment of train service.

IRISH RIOT HURTS FIFTEEN SERIOUSLY

DUBLIN, Sept. 27.—Fifteen persons were seriously injured and many others were slightly hurt today in a pitched battle between a mob of several thousand and police after the crowd wrecked the front of a British-owned brewery.

The police broke up the riot by repeatedly charging the crowd, swinging batons freely. The attack on the brewery climaxed a recent series of incidents in which mobs have destroyed quantities of British beer.

OHIO CITIES

nounced yesterday by the board, came from the city of Kenton, which asked approval of a project calling for construction of a $442,000 steam-electric power station. The city asked for an outright grant of $112,110 from the federal government and a loan of $330,790.

Strong opposition is expected to develop from friends of various Ohio utility companies. Kenton is already served by the Ohio Power Co.

Defiance, which obtains its electrical energy from the same company, filed a request several weeks ago for approval of a new $342-000 electrical generating plant, asking a grant of $102,000 and a loan of $240,000.

Now served by the Ohio Public Service Co., Hiram has proposed a $31,000 generating plant, with a request for a $9,300 grant and a loan for the remainder.

Due to complaints of utility companies that they might be driven out of business, losing all the money they have invested over a long period of years, the state board will move cautiously in its consideration of such projects. The federal public works administration has announced that competitive power projects will be "eligible" for funds, but has gone no further.

Launching of the Tennessee Valley project, with federal money being used to encourage competition against private firms, has inspired Ohio cities to believe they may receive help of the same type on a smaller scale.

OHIO MANAGER IN STATEMENT CONCERNING HOLC'S IDEALS

The principles upon which the Home Owners' Loan Corporation will fulfill its functions with greater advantage to all holders of home mortgage loans eligible under the Corporation's functions were outlined in a statement received by State Manager Henry G. Brunner from the Federal Home Bank Board at Washington today.

Addressed to mortgage holders who now face the alternative of foreclosure or the sacrifice of past due or future interest, the statement said:

"Inquiries from many thousands of mortgage owners ask whether to accept the 4 per cent bonds of the Corporation in exchange for mortgage loans in difficulty which they now hold. The Board makes clear that the holder would benefit by acceptance to the extent that he would exchange an investment now yielding little or no return for well secured bonds paying a 4 per cent income, guaranteed by the United State Government, during the 18 year life of the bonds, such income being exempt from all taxes except surtaxes and estate, inheritance and gift taxes.

"A second question asked by many holders of mortgages is whether the 4 per cent Corporation bonds may be sold or redeemed at their face value at any time. The Board points out in reply that the Home Owners' Loan Act was passed, not for the purpose of giving such holders cash for their mortgage loans, but as a constructive means of relieving both the lender and the borrower by providing a sound long-term loan under Federal supervision.

"The principal of the bonds is secured by amortized mortgages upon homes fairly and reasonably appraised, and is not due for payment for 18 years. The price of the bonds, therefore, is subject to the law of market supply and demand in exactly the same manner as any other high grade unmatured obligation. The bonds, if accepted and held by investors who fully understand their merits and who wish to enjoy income guaranteed by the United States Government would presumably command a stable market price consistent with their quality and with prevailing money rates."

The announcement concludes by emphasizing that any investor who sells the bonds below their face value would defeat his own interests since he would find it difficult to invest the proceeds with equal safety in other securities paying an equivalent income return. The statement illustrates this by the fact that if the bonds are sold at a price of 86 for example, the investor would find it necessary to place the funds realized from such sale in other tax exempt securities paying 5 per cent or more in order to obtain as high an income as the 4 per cent yield guaranteed by the Corporation bonds.

FIGURES THAT LIE!

IT is true that the death rate in Ohio from tuberculosis declined from 102 per 100,000 population in 1920 to 55 per 100,000 population in 1932.

But if those figures indicate the struggle against tuberculosis is over, they lie! Imagine 55 out of every 100,000 people in Ohio dying from this dreaded disease. Deaths that could have been prevented, for tuberculosis can be cured—and right here in Ohio.

Let us not look with satisfaction upon the small progress made. Rather let us be concerned about the big task ahead. Let us see that no sufferer from tuberculosis is denied proper care and treatment, that no one be allowed to spread its germs among family, friends or fellow workers.

NOTHING should be permitted to stop the fight against tuberculosis. Every locality should make adequate provision for the care of needy tuberculous patients for the safety and protection of all. Write for free copy of "Blacking Out the White Plague."

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at drug stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

The Medicine Cabinet

ALTHOUGH the purpose of the home medicine cabinet is the protection of health and life, it frequently becomes a source of illness and even death.

The handling of poisons seems to have ample safeguards thrown around it everywhere except in the home. Utmost care is used by the manufacturer who makes it, the physician who prescribes it and the druggest who dispenses it. But as soon as it reaches the home, the safeguards seem to break down. The box or bottle is placed in the medicine cabinet along with a conglomeration of other boxes, bottles and whatnots.

Along may come a child whose attention is attracted to the mysterious collection, and before the mother or father is aware of it a poisonous tablet may have been swallowed. Even adults are not immune to the serious possibilities of the medicine cabinet. Reaching for a harmless remedy in the dark, or with attention diverted elsewhere, may bring fatal results to the man or woman doing the reaching. Many such cases are on record.

The danger is a real one. It is so real that the United States public health service has taken recognition of it in a warning in which it declares that the average person "messes up everything from common baking soda to bichloride of mercury tablets, despite the fact that doctors have issued warning about the danger of having poisons in the home."

If poisons must be kept in the home, the proper way, of course, is to segregate them and to see that they are out of reach of exploring children. Equal care should be taken to see that they are so placed that there will be no danger of a person mistaking them for a harmless remedy.

Running From Taxes

THE decision of the New York stock exchange to move to New Jersey is of national interest chiefly as emphasizing how harrassing taxes can become and how stifling to business.

The tax situation in New York city is different only in degree from that which prevails in most cities and states throughout the nation. Everywhere exists the need for additional revenue. Dire results are predicted by officials charged with spending public funds if more money is not brought in.

Among the new taxes decreed in New York city—largely a victim of Tammany greed and corruption—is one of 5 per cent on gross revenue of security dealers and another of four cents on each share of stock transferred. This source of revenue already had been tapped by the state.

Stock exchange officials regarded this increased burden as an unjust imposition, with the result that decision was reached to move their business to Newark, New York, after all, will lose all of the revenue it expected to derive from the new taxes affecting the exchange. A more modest levy might not have been resented and would have aforded the city some financial help.

The situation illustrates the danger of burdening business with taxes on top of taxes. It contains a lesson that needs to be learned in nearly every governmental unit in the country. This is that a halt must be made in boosting taxes. Less costly governmental machinery needs to be installed. This coupled with greater economy efforts on the part of officials will bring relief.

CHAPTER XLIII

Maisie went grumbling away. Not for worlds would she let Joan know she was worried . . . terribly worried . . . Joan. Surely Joan wouldn't do anything wrong . . . it couldn't be that . . . and she didn't drink. There was no stale smell of gin in the room . . . Maisie shuddered. She remembered that smell . . . Fanny . . .

"I guess I've had my share of trouble," she told the coffee pot, "Oh well . . . I only hope everythin's all right with Joan. I don't like it . . ."

"You'd better phone Fanny," she said, still in the brusque, scolding tone she used to cover her emotion, "an' tell her I overslep', and you're going to be good and late. Fanny's never anywhere on time herself but I know how she is if anybody else is late."

"Yes," Joan said docilely.

She looked more natural now that she was bathed and dressed for the day. And certainly she had not been crying. That was one good sign. Or Maisie thought it was until she remembered that she had never cried in the old days, when she was eating her heart out for that scoundrel Bill. . . .

"You'd better call her now," Maisie repeated severely.

"All right."

But it was Curtis's number she called when Maisie had gone bustling down the back stairs to complain about the garbage can again. "The rent I pay for this place, an' the service I get . . . worse n' a tenement in Tar Flat. Let me catch that man an 'I'll give him a piece of my mind that'll—"

Maisie's voice rumbling down the stairs, and at the telephone, Joan's small and timid, like a child's—

"Curtis, this is Joan. I'm sorry if I disturbed you . . . I just remembered that it is the Cunningham's dinner dance tonight. Could you tell them I'm ill, please, Curtis? . . . Oh no, no—please don't ask me—I couldn't face them—I couldn't . . . All right, if you think it is best . . . Yes, I'll manage, somehow."

So she had to go, because people would think it queer if she didn't. She'd have to go, and dance and smile, and laugh and talk to Curtis, as if nothing had happened . . . because . . . because he hadn't made up his mind.

"Oh, make him decide soon . . . make him . . . make him . . ." It was her little prayer, that she repeated under her breath all the long day.

"I can't go—I can't—I can't." But she knew she could. "I can do anything," she thought with a strange, detached admiration of her own calm. "I even danced with Bill without screaming . . . and if I can do that . . . I can do anything."

The orchestra was playing when they came in, Joan and Curtis together, for the last time, surely for the last time . . . he wouldn't expect her to do it again . . .

Lights, laughter, music. "Hello, Joan!" "Hello Curtis!"—"Joan, the next dance with me!" The same words, the same people, the same motions. . . . One part of her was alive to them, one part of her smiled, and answered them, ate squab and little green peas . . . and one part was dead . . . not seeing, nor hearing, nor feeling . . . dead, dead . . .

"Curtis is off his oats tonight," Eugenia said.

Mollie Davis looked and laughed. "No, that's just his regular face. Wooden, I call him. I never could see what you saw in him myself—"

"I like that! He was never anything in my life—just a family friend—"

"Look at him mooning at the Hastings girl. If you ask me she carries that Lily Maid of Astolat stuff too far. She looks like something washed up by the tide—"

"Mollie!"

"Well, she does. Did you ever see anything the way he keeps looking at her! He hasn't taken his eyes off her once all evening."

Mollie was right, he hadn't.

He couldn't. When he took her hand to dance with her it burned him coldly, like ice. He was repelled and attracted and torn a dozen ways at once. He saw her white beauty, clear and clean and virginal. Her pathetic childish lips, scarlet in the white of her face. Her deep gray-green eyes, the color of troubled waters, half hidden by the long golden lashes, just deeper than the gold of her hair. Her dear, curly hair that glinted like a halo, a halo of goodness. . . .

And then he'd see her dancing, someone else's arms about her. Someone holding her close, someone whispering to her, loving her perhaps . . . Good God—what if that were the man . . . it might be . . . It might be someone he met every day of his life . . . someone who would take his hand and congratulate him, with his tongue in his cheek, "Lucky boy, Barstow!" Luck boy—getting the girl I love. . . .

He'd wipe his damp forehead . . . that couldn't go on. Impossible to go through life, wondering that way. Better never to see her again. Never to see her . . . to let her go forever? Joan with the skin like velvet, the sweet red lips . . . Impossible to leave her . . . to give her up now . . . with the wedding date set, and the plans all made. . . .

"I'm going crazy!—Crazy!" he thought desperately.

And when the gaiety was at its height, and the music was mounting to its height of abandon, when she was dancing, laughingly, with Bert Cunningham, he brought her her coat.

"For heaven's sake, let us get out of here," Curtis said.

"For heavens sake, let us get out of here," he said.

Lyla Barstow set down her teacup with a little tinkling sound. "But he must have said something," she said. "It isn't like Curtis to go off without a word!"

"No, he didn't, I didn't see him at all," Joan repeated dully. She had been repeating it for half an hour, but still the inquisition went on.

"Yes, but he wouldn't have gone all the way to Seattle to finish that case alone. Mr. Kennedy himself said it wasn't necessary. He didn't know why Curtis went, and I'm sure I can't understand it. Why should he get on the train so suddenly, and take that long miserable trip when a few telegrams, or even a telephone conversation would have done as well?"

"I don't know, Mrs. Barstow."

"Nonsense—of course, you know. He wouldn't have gone off that way without some reason. You are sure you didn't quarrel, Joan?"

"No, we didn't quarrel."

"Not that there would be any excuse for quarreling with Curtis. There never was anyone so easy to get along with as he. Joan, I don't want to hurt you, but have you understood Curtis? He hasn't been himself since—since this engagement. My dear, do you think you will make him happy? Wouldn't it be better—"

Joan just twisted her handkerchief in her hands.

"You see what I mean. If you can't get along, surely it is better to admit it now. Much as I'd hate to see it broken off—"

She stopped and sighed. Miserable to have to break it now, and still . . . and still . . . to have him to herself again . . . how heavenly that would be . . .

"But we didn't quarrel," Joan said.

"Well—"

The next day she began all over again, telephoning to Joan bright and early, at the shop. "Joan? This is Mrs. Barstow. You haven't heard from Curtis? I can't understand it. Really, I think you are keeping something from me. Do you think that is fair, my dear? Don't you think that as his mother I am entitled to some consideration, some confidence? What's that? . . . I can't hear you? . . . You haven't heard at all? Well, do get in touch with me when you do. I'm wiring Baker's in Seattle. I don't know why he doesn't write—"

Baker's reported briefly and collect that Mr. Barstow had not as yet called at their office.

Curtis had no intention of calling at Baker's. As Kennedy said, the work there was finished. He simply went because he had to go somewhere, and it was the first place that occurred to him. He had to get away from Joan and San Francisco. Had to get away to think. . . .

And besides—there was Blanche.

It was lonely in the hotel, lonely and quiet. Too rainy and dismal to walk in the parks. He couldn't think any better here than he could home . . . he was a fool to have come . . .

He went down to the desk to see about a ticket home. No, he wasn't ready to go back yet. Not for a little while. He'd run out and see Blanche, Blanche would be home . . .

Blanche had housekeeping rooms in an old house way out on Fifth Street. It was amazing what Blanche had accomplished with a few yards of yellow chintz, and a can of green paint. Blanche was a great housekeeper, and a great cook. He got to thinking about her chicken with mushrooms and garlic, Italian style, and a big dish of spaghetti on the side . . . that, and a couple of bottles of beer . . .

"Sure!" she said when he telephoned, "Bring the chicken, and I'll get busy on it. I got six bottles of good beer Ferd brought in on the last trip. . . . No, he ain't in port now, not until the 22nd. Gee, I'm glad you're in town. I was kinda lonesome. Gloria has been talkin' about you, too. Only this morning she said to me, 'Mamma, why don't Uncle Curt come no more?'—the poor kid, she likes you!"

Questions and Answers

Is there a difference between pimento and pimiento?

Pimento as used for flavoring is an allspice obtained from the dried, unripe, aromatic berries of the pimento tree. Pimiento is the Spanish name for red sweet peppers. The Americanized spelling of pimiento has become pimento and the terms are used almost interchangeably in reference to the pepper. The spice is not common.

What is Creole Corn Chowder and how is it made?

Creole Corn Chowder is a chowder made from fresh green corn or canned corn, that is about as thick as a puree. When served it is poured hot over crackers.

Put ¼ cup butter in a saucepan and brown one chopped onion and two chopped green peppers from which the white membrane and seeds have been removed. Add one cup of corn, either fresh or canned. Add two cups of stock, water or milk, and thicken with 2 tablespoons of flour and stir until it boils. Add 2 cups of strained tomato, and 1 teaspoonful of sugar and stir until it boils once more. To serve pour hot over six to twelve crackers. If made the day before serving and allowed to stand, the flavor will be much improved.

What is the correct temperature for cream puffs?

A standardized temperature chart for oven use states that cream puffs and eclairs should be baked in an oven set at 450 degrees for the first 20 to 25 minutes. Set the thermostat dial to 350 degrees and leave the cream puffs in the oven to dry out thoroughly for the remaining time which will be 30 to 35 minutes. The total baking period will be from 50 to 60 minutes. Cream puffs will be soggy unless they are baked thoroughly to dry out the cavity shaped in the baking.

Place alternately in a baking dish with a layer of squash and a layer of tomatoes, sprinkling each layer with salt and pepper. Pour warm meat gravy or meat stock over the vegetables. NEW YORK—The metropolitan district of greater New York is not generally considered a section of the state where farming is carried on and where farm woodlots flourish. waters, terror to all but the most skillful navigators, and traditional among men who follow the sea, figures in the thrilling details of "Tugboat Annie," in which Marie Dressler and Wallace Beery co-star in their first appearance since "Min and Bill." The new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, based on Norman Reilly Raine's Saturday Evening Post tales of the feminine tugboat skipper, now showing at the Cliftona Theatre. The film is to be shown an extra day as a result of the remarkable attendance and ovation offered by patrons.

The "inside passage" is a channel formed by the mainland on one side and thousands of small islands, with channels between that deceive and mislead the mariner into reefs and other perils.

Favorite Course Northward

Because the islands protect the "inside passage" from heavy storms it is a favorite course northward. Countless legends have arisen about the islands, many of them still unexplored. Famous sea captains made history there during the Klondyke days and became tradition because of their skill in negotiating the dangerous channel.

AT THE GRAND

The thin line which separates genius from madness, a great conqueror from an arrant rascal, saint from lowliest sinner, has its counterpart in the movies.

The villian quite often becomes the hero.

And when that happens, a player's whole life, his outlook on everything—even his fan mail—changes.

Such a change has come recently to Lyle Talbot, who comes to the Grand Theater on Wednesday in the Warner Bros., mystery thriller, "Girl Missing."

Will Rogers Picks A Story For This Spot

By WILL ROGERS

THERE is a guy in Milwaukee that claims he was driving along a road about twenty miles out of town one night late and come across a good-looking woman bawling her eyes out, setting in the middle of the road. You understand, I don't believe it. This guy just brags about his luck.

He stops his car and says, "Goodness me, pretty lady, what you bawling about?"

"Why, we're going to have waffles and honey for breakfast at my home in Milwaukee tomorrow!"

"Well, that's a funny thing to bawl about, sure enough!"

"Funny, is it, smarty!" she says. "It ain't so funny twenty miles from home and not a drop of gas left!"

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

Nothing like it has been seen in any other part of the New Deal. Disgruntled contractors have joined in the battle. They have resorted to anonymous letters, below-the-belt jabs, anything to discredit Ickes, anything to put through the 942 buildings.

But Ickes has been holding the ace. This is a secret committee of three, working quietly behind the scenes, applying the magnifying glass to the 942 buildings, to see the most flagrant pieces of pork.

Soon a report will be issued on those buildings which are not a dead loss to the community, on which construction will be rushed. It will satisfy most of the howls from Congress.

Merry-Go-Round

Damage claims from American-Jewish citizens whose property has been seized by German Nazis, are beginning to arrive at the State Department . . . Officials expect a lot of them . . . Not many people know it, but at one time Mabel Walker Willebrandt, while Assistant Attorney General, was being shadowed by detectives working for her own Justice Department . . . A rival Assistant Attorney General who hated Mrs. Willebrandt assigned the dicks to try to get something on her. They didn't . . . The Republican National Committee is having a hard time raising funds these days . . . Justice Brandeis of the Supreme Court has taken a great interest in consumers' credit, thinks that prosperity will not be definitely here until the man in the street has some money with which to buy . . . Brandeis was indirectly influential in getting F. D. R. to take an interest in this question . . . A portrait of Mrs. Roosevelt as a very young woman hangs over the door of the President's Lincoln Study. At that time she was a most handsome woman, resembling her daughter . . . The portrait faces the President's desk . . . State Department stenographers were lined up solidly behind Secretary Hull in his fight with Professor Moley . . . One reason was that Moley brought into his office New York stenogs . . . This was resented.

Confessed Double Murder

Arrested for speeding in New Jersey, Louis K. Neu, 25-year-old sailor, of Savannah, Ga., lost his head in the shadow of the law and confessed to the murders of Lawrence Shead, of Paterson, N. J., and Sheffield Clark, of New Orleans, La. He was driving Clark's car when arrested. Neu is shown with Captain Patrick Brady in police headquarters.

QUERIES, ANSWERS CONCERNING HOLC

Q. What class of borrowers can be relieved by the Corporation?

A. Only those who are in distress, not through any fault of their own, but due to the present conditions. But who are delinquent with their loans or are owing principal and interest, or back taxes, and whose homes are badly in need of necessary repairs.

Q. On what kind of property will the Corporation make mortgage loans?

A. The Corporation will make loans on homes occupied by the owners or held by them as their homesteads, although temporarily not occupied by the owner; and a value not exceeding $20,000.00, and built for not more than four (4) families; and where the lien to be liquidated is on record as of June 13, 1933. The property must be in fee simple or on a lease held under a renewable lease for not less than 99 years and including the interest of a vendor under a purchase money mortgage or contract.

Q. Is a loan in distress when the borrower is in default on interest of taxes, or both, but no foreclosure threatened?

A. Even though foreclosure proceedings have not been threatened, in many cases it is found that the borrower is in distress due to the fact that there may be back taxes and in default for interest and principal. This is governed by the individual case. For instance, the applicant may not be in distress as far as the first mortgage is concerned, but where there is a second mortgage and they have threatened foreclosure, certainly this person is in distress.

Q. What percentage of the appraised value of the property will the Corporation lend in bonds?

A. The Corporation will loan 80 per cent of our appraisers' value in Home Owners' Loan Corporation Bonds.

Q. What is the maximum of cash allowed to pay taxes and repairs above the amount of the bonds.

A. Cash will be advanced to pay all back taxes that are due and on the books in the County Treasurer's Office; repairs are these which are necessary as determined by our appraisers on which bids will be received from responsible contractors and made a part of the loan.

Q. Will the Corporation make a cash loan where the amount requested is 40 per cent or less of the appraised value of the property?

A. Where the creditor will not accept bonds and the situation is especially acute.

Q. Is the principal of these bonds guaranteed by the Government? If not, what security is back of these bonds?

A. The principal is not guaranteed by the Government. However, the United States Treasury has subscribed for $200,000,000 of stock in the Corporation. The bonds are further secured by every mortgage that is taken by the Home Owners' Loan Corporation, which, of course, is only first mortgages. The Home Owners' Loan Corporation is an instrumentality of the United States the bonds are not guaranteed as Meaning, of course, even through to principal the government is back of this corporation.

Laughing Around the World

Nothing Doing in the Fish Line

By IRVIN S. COBB

SOME people insist that measuring, class by class, the lowest strata of human intelligence in America is found among Key West sponge fishermen. Others hold that the group-place at the foot of the column properly belongs to a certain order of theatrical producers.

ers. As proof of the value of their contention they point to the story of the theatrical manager, who, on being told that a play brought him by a certain dramatist was based upon one of Charles Dickens' novels, said:

"Well, you get hold of this fellow Dickens and bring him around to lunch tomorrow and we'll get his ideas and fix up a contract."

Without any desire to take part in the controversy over the respective merits of the theatrical managers and the Key West sponge-fishers, I herewith submit, for what it may be worth, an incident which happened in the office of a prominent producing manager, whose name is a household word in every actor's home. To him there came an experienced playwright bearing the script of a new piece which he had just finished.

"I don't want you should read it to me, now," said the manager. "Just tell me what it's like."

"Well," said the playwright, "it's a historical drama in five acts. I call it The Dauphin."

"For why do you call it that?"

"Because it's based on the story of the Lost Dauphin."

"I don't want it," said the manager emphatically. "It wouldn't go. The public wouldn't never stand for a play about a fish."

IT TAKES HEALTHY NERVES TO DIVE TO THE BOTTOM OF THE SEA

FRANK CRILLEY, champion deep-sea diver of the world, retired naval diver, holder of the Congressional Medal of Honor, the Navy Cross and other decorations, about to go over the side in a nerve-wracking, deep-sea descent. Crilley says: "I smoke Camels and have smoked them for years. They are a milder cigarette and they taste better. But more important than that to me—they never upset my nervous system."

DIVING FOR FUN calls for healthy nerves, too! You can smoke all you want and never have jangled nerves, if you switch to Camels. The costlier tobaccos in Camels are milder, and they taste better, too!

A MATCHLESS BLEND

IT IS MORE FUN TO KNOW
Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand.

Steady Smokers turn to Camels

FRANK CRILLEY says: "Deep down under 300 feet of water, working feverishly under terrific pressure – no place for a nervous man! That's why a diver's nerves must always be in perfect condition. And that's why I smoke Camels and have smoked them for years. They are a milder cigarette and they taste better. But more important than that to me—they never upset my nervous system." His heroic feats prove his statement.

* * *

Camel's costlier tobaccos are milder, do taste better. They never get on the nerves. Men and women whose very lives depend on healthy nerves have discovered this. Your nerves will confirm it. Start smoking Camels today and learn the difference.
